On teachers' right to strike

LWV wants community lobby

PLYMOUTH—Noting their alarm over the lack of planned citizen involvement in discussions of new legislation for teacher negotiations, the members of the Plymouth-Northville League of Women Voters plan to do something about it.

On Jan. 22, the LWV is setting the first meeting to form a "task force" of citizens within the Plymouth Community School District which will lobby and recommend legislation that "reflects the thinking of the Plymouth Community School District."

THE MEETING will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room at East Middle School, 1042 S. Mill St.

Plans call for representation from all segments of the community. According to LWV member Nancy White, the league is especially interested in getting participation from all sides of the teacher negotiotion issue: teachers, school board members, parents and students.

"We hope people with strong feelings will attend so we can insure a balanced dialogue," Mrs. White said.

The task force is hopeful of arriving at a position within the next two weeks so that findings of the group can be presented to State Rep. William Keith (D-Garden City), and the seven other members of his special house committee which will recommend legislation in Lansing on Feb. 15.

The task force will look at the history and status of current legislation, problems with the current laws, and goals on which all sides can hopefully agree.

"THE EFFECTS of any new legislation will have an impact on virtually all citizens," Mrs. White said. "We will explore both the benefits and penalties of proposed legislation from the point of view of teachers, administrators, parents, students and school board members alike."

The task force will meet at least two times prior to presenting its findings to the Keith committee. The second meeting will be scheduled "within a week" of the inital meeting on Jan. 22, Mrs. White said.

Deputy schools Supt. Dr. Earl Hogan said he thought the idea was "excellent."

"A workable solution to the problem is going to require more information than the legislature currently has to make a rational decision."

STRESSING the need for a broad base for the group to have any impact, Hogan noted, "It's going to take input from everyone and not just a single special group. I'm glad that a local group has taken the initiative to bring differing opinions together."

Mrs. White has contacted representatives of parents groups, bus drivers, Republicans, Democrats and city and township governmental officials.

She has also contacted the Plymouth Education Association and a representative said the PEA was interested in participating.

Mettetal airport is up for sale

By RICHARD GOLD

Bob and Marv Mettetal are getting ready to sell their airport, and there is a possibility it may be converted into a manufacturing area.

The Mettetal brothers, who have owned the airport since 1959, can't make enough money out of the old airport to keep it going and live comfortably.

Says Bob: "We just can't compete with municipal airports. The capital improvements we'd have to make here are just too costly. Besides we get taxed too hard to make a comfortable living out of the place."

Explains Marv Mettetal: "We're a public utility, but we pay taxes as a private enterprise. We're taxed at a rate that says this land (about 70 acres) is worth more than a million dollars." Adds Bob, "Because we're a public utility, people can just come down here, land their planes, and thumb their noses at us. There's nothing we can do."

Marv, the younger of the two Mettetals explains that the heavy tax on private airports has quickened their demise throughout the nation. "About 15 years ago, all over the county people just started unloading. Now there aren't too many left."

The airport was owned by the Mettetal brothers' parents and in 1946, Bob who is now 55, began leasing the airport. In 1959 Marv joined him and they bought the facility from their parents' estate.

SINCE THEN they have sunk more than $500,000 into the enterprise. All of their income now is derived from rental space of the many hangars that dot the landscape of the airport.

The trouble, as Bob explains, is there are no tax incentives for private airports. "We pay over $30,000 a year in gas taxes and they go to improve public airports. We don't get one cent in the form of a rebate."

Over the years many businesses and residents have moved near the airport to use its facilities. But with the quicker and larger aiplanes utilized today by businesses, Mettetal airport has become partially obsolete.

"We just can't handle the business planes any more. They're too big and we don't have the runway space," says Marv.

According to the Mettetal brothers, the only way the airport could remain in the future would be if a local government purchased it.

"A municipal governement could attract federal funds. They could buy the thing now, make the improvements and in no time at all the place would be packed. There's plenty of room to expand the runway, and we have an old survey that says there's $2.4 million in federal money just waiting if a municipality purchases this place," comments Marv.

THE LAND is zoned M-2 for manufacturing and, if a local governement doesn't purchase the property, it is quite possible a land developer might.

Marv adds: " We have all the utilities here. There's a natural gas hook up readily available for anyone that wants to turn this land into a manufacturing area."

"We had our chance in 1962 when this land developer offered us an awful lot, but we were too bullheaded. We just put the runway in and we thought we'd build the place up."

The airport used to be a full service facility with maintenance rental, instruction, and charter services for both helicopters and small planes.

But the maintenance service left a few years ago and there is no space now to put a shop. Business has tailed off over the last few years, and with it Bob Mettetal's enthusiasm.

He has been involved with aircraft all his life and, unlike his brother, when they sell the airport he will retire. In 1967 he suffered three serious heart attacks and since has not been allowed to fly. His biggest remaining hope is when the airport is sold it won't be turned into an industrial park. "I sure hope they don't tear it out," he says with a trace of remorse.

'Live' jobs add to learning

By DARLENE STINSON

CANTON— The smell of printers ink and the clanking whir of presses, each day surround the bustle of the Plymouth Centennial Educational Park's graphic art classes.

One student mans the offset presses, while another draws a layout for a new job assignment. A third sets letterpress type in a metal tray, while a fourth shoots the process camera.

The students, enrolled in beginning and advanced graphic art courses taught at Plymouth Salem High School, print Christmas cards, pamphlets, programs and brochures.

"I think it's a lot better for the kids to do live jobs rather than fictitious work they can't do anything with," explained graphic arts teacher Michael Gallmeier. "Anything a commercial printer in town can do, we can do here."

Three offset presses and a process camera used in the offset printing technique fill the back portion of the high school printing shop, while a letterpress sits at the side.

The graphic students will print material contracted from persons outside school for the cost of materials, Gallmeier explained. Many of the jobs are too small for commercial printers to accept.

One or two students are usually assigned to each job, he explained, and complete each assignment from design to finished product.

"Most of these students won't go into graphics, just like most English students don't go into English," Gallmeier said as he gazed around the room at students busy with the printing process.

"This is an industrial education course, and the philosophy is to give students an opportunity to take courses they'll be interested in. This is what all industrial art classes are about.

In agreement was Gary Guerriero, who teaches a beginning graphic arts course as well as a graphic communication course, lightly touching on all aspects of the graphics field, in Plymouth Canton High School.

"None of the objectives of the course is to produce a professional photographer or printer," Guerriero said. "It just serves as a broadening of students' horizons. There are very few services today that don't require graphic arts."

Gallmeier said most students enroll in the course out of curiosity.

"It's kind of a fun course for me," said 11th grader Joe Roose. 'I'm in the marching band, and we're making tickets, posters and programs for the "Variety Is" band show."

John Marsh, another 11th grader, said he is considering graphics as an occupational field.

"I'm not very good at art," Marsh said, "but I like printing, because you can do a lot with it. Printing is big business these days."

Another student added, "I just like doing the work here. I don't know if I'd like it as an occupation, but maybe as a part-time thing to help pay for tuition, if I go on to college."

Gallmeier said enrollment in the course has "mushroomed" over the past few years.

"The class has really mushroomed," he said. "I think the reason is that students can actually see what they're doing and come out with a finished product."

The course stresses offset more than letterpress or silk screen printing, Gallmeier said, "because it's more relevant to today's industry."

The course cannot be termed vocational education, he added. since students attend classes for only four hours every six days. A class must meet a minimum 10 hours a week to be eligible for state vocational educational funds.

Boundary forum set

PLYMOUTH—An open public forum with plenty of opportunity for citizen participation is scheduled Saturday by the Citizens Study Committee on School Attendance Boundaries.

Meeting from 10 a.m. to noon in the Plymouth Canton High School Commons, the group is seeking citizen input on priorities including: safety, busing, transfer-open enrollment, neighborhood school concept, and stability of attendance areas.

Other items under consideration will be socio-economic mix, equalizing class size, and the cost to the district of any of the proposed changes.

For middle and high school enrollment the discussion will center on the present feeder system, random selection, and open enrollment.

Community members will divide into groups to discuss the various aspects of school attendance boundaries and let their priorities be known to the committee members.

The committee will consider all of the citizen suggestions and incorporate those suggestions into its final recommendations to the board.

MEA marks time on Crestwood issues

By DENNY COFFMAN

SOUTHFIELD—The Michigan Education Association reaffirmed its determination to stage a 14-district walkout of teachers in western Wayne County if striking Crestwood District teachers are not reinstated after being fired by the Crestwood Board of Education.

At a meeting in Southfield last night of more than 150 MEA representatives, North Wayne County Executive Director George Trudell stated: "Our decision tonight upon recommendation of the review board, is that teachers will strike to support their colleagues with 48 hours notice."

Trudell indicated that an anticipated teacher walkout might go beyond Wayne County boundaries, when he said, "Any unit that wants to strike may do so, not only people from Wayne County."

THE REAFFIRMATION was needed, as teacher enthusiasm apparently has been waning in light of the recent Michigan Court of Appeals decision to stay a circuit court order that would have reinstated the Crestwood teachers.

Support for a walkout likely reached its zenith just hours after the Crestwood District hired non-union teachers. However, a walkout scheduled a week ago was delayed pending circuit court decision.

Then, after the court ruled to re-instate the union teachers, the Michigan Court of Appeals granted a stay order until Friday, when it will rule on an appeal by the Crestwood Board of Education.

The MEA has been forced to postpone walkouts until the Crestwood matter is settled. And with every passing day, it becomes harder to keep spirits high.

The MEA brought out its big guns—Keith Geiger, president of the MEA; Trudell; Herman Coleman, executive secretary; and even Gary Herndon, National Education Association president.

HERNDON ASSERTED that the Crestwood teachers have provided him with "an affirmative answer" to his questioning of teachers' "inseparable mutuality."

"This is the place for a commitment to be expressed," he said.

"My role is to expedite the resources of 1.6 million people (the NEA membership) and I am confident that the courts will bring an outcome in favor of us," said Herndon.

Coleman also expressed his confidence in the judicial process. "In most cases of appeal, the lower courts are upheld," he said.

At a preceding meeting, Trudell met with delegates from 14 Wayne County unions pledged to a walkout if the Crestwood teachers are not rehired.

The preliminary meeting was apparently intended to urge the delegates to keep their membership interested in the walkout.

THE MICHIGAN Supreme Court let it be known Wednesday that it would not consider an MEA appeal until after the Michigan Court of Appeals reaches a decision.

The court voted by a 4-3 margin not to dissolve the stay order issued by the Court of Appeals.

Those justices voting not to dissolve the stay order were Thomas G. Kavanagh, Charles Levin, John Fitzgerald and Mary Coleman.

Thomas M. Kavanagh, chief justice, G. Mennen Williams and John Swainson favored dissolving the Appeals Court stay order.

The Appeals Court has scheduled a hearing on the Crestwood matter for 10 a.m. Friday, and a decision could come over the weekend.

According to both the Crestwood board and the MEA, the Appeals Court has indicated that it will attempt to expedite the case.

Meanwhile, classes trudge along at Crestwood schools, with non-union teachers bucking pickets, including 150 hardhats.

Tax cut likely, lawmakers say

By TIM RICHARD

Local lawmakers feel Congress and President Ford can compromise their differences and pass a tax cut rather quickly this winter.

"After partisan positioning recently by both Congress and the president, we'll be able to pass a tax rebate in the next 60 days," said Republican Marvin Esch, whose 2nd District includes Livonia and Plymouth.

"We're not that far apart," said Democrat William D. Ford, whose 15th District includes Garden City, Westland and Canton Township. "We're talking about the mechanics. It's not likely we'll have any tough veto confrontations."

PRESIDENT FORD, who was a Michigan congressman himself for 25 years, Monday night called for 12 per cent income tax rebates for individuals up to a $1,000 return.

Ford also asked for more generous investment tax credits and a $3 a barrel import fee on foreign oil.

For the auto industry, Ford proposed a five-year moratorium on imbosition of emissions standards, a move aimed at holding off on built-in increases on the prices of American cars.

Congressional Democrats earlier called for tax cuts for lower and middle income groups. Bill Ford and Esch both felt their differences could be worked out since all had bought the principle of cutting taxes to stimulate consumer demand.

ESCH SAID he is drafting his own plan for a tax rebate for persons who purchase cars this year. He declined to go into specifics until his staff had completed work.

Esch added he has asked House Speaker Carl Albert to "do away with our February recess of about 10 days, when Republicans have their Lincoln Day dinners and Democrats their Jefferson-Jackson dinners."

Now in his fifth term, Esch is ranking Republican on the manpower committee of the House Education and Labor Committee, adding: "It looks like I'll be ranking member on the subcommittee dealing with research and development on environmental standards." The latter body is a subcommittee of the House Science and Technology Committee.

BILL FORD, IN HIS sixth term, was gleeful at the new rules about electing committee chairmen. "Now that we're electing chairmen, you'd be surprised how many senior members are calling me by my first name now."

In another move, Ford got an office in the Rayburn Building, newest and most luxurious of the three office buildings used by U.S. representatives.

Ford said the president's proposals showed "he finally understands what we were trying to say last fall about sliding into a recession." He and Esch agreed, however, that the economic proposals of the administration would do little to help alleviate Michigan's biggest problem — auto industry layoffs.

On one point, Bill Ford has changed his views: "Six months ago, I was against the investment tax credit route." Now he says that "if we (Democrats) have to buy that to get the rest of the package, I think we'd buy it."

IN GROSS TERMS, President Ford and congressional Democrats are fairly close on the total size of projected tax cuts.

"We Democrats in December were saying there should be a $10 billion tax cut, and (Alan) Greenspan (chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors) said it was ludicrous," said Bill Ford. "The president now says a $16 billion tax cut, and we're saying $20 billion. There are no deep differences."

Bill Ford called construction, rather than autos, the key to economic recovery. "At the economic summit meetings in October," he said, "Henry Ford II and others were pitching that if you are going to do anything for the economy, it will have to be in construction.

"Well, there's a big chunk of money for water pollution control that was impounded by Nixon and hasn't been released by the new administration. That could do some good in our area (the downriver portion of the 15th District)."

Ford recalled President Kennedy's accelerated public works plan in the early '60s: "If local government's got it on the drawing boards and doesn't have it budgeted, and if you can get it under way quickly and if it's reasonably labor intensive, we'll give you the money, Kennedy said. I was a lawyer for some communities then, and that was a good program. There was never any scandal in it," said Ford, who would like to see it reopened.

County eyes new jobs

Residents of Redford Township, Westland and Plymouth are expected to be able to participate in a federally-funded program to hire the unemployed and underemployed in Wayne County.

A grant of nearly $5.2 million will allow the county to hire approximately 550 persons for public service jobs paying about $8,000 each.

The grant will apply to qualifying residents living outside of Detroit, Dearborn and Livonia, which will receive direct allocations from the federal government.

A tentative allocation of $5,178,650 was approved Jan. 9, by the U.S. Department of Labor, under a new Title VI section of the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

Recruitment for the jobs will begin as soon as an overall hiring plan is approved by the County Board of Commissioners, which is expected to authorize a program by Jan. 16 at the latest.

Under the program currently planned, each department or agency will conduct its own hiring program, which afterwards will be monitored and coordinated by the County Office of Manpower.

Livonia residents are ineligible to participate because the city has a population over 100,000, which qualifies it for a direct grant.

Western Wayne County areas eligible to participate and their share of the county's $5.2 million are: Redford Township, $390,516; Westland, $269,721 and Plymouth, $101,513.

Eligible individuals must live in Wayne County in eligible areas and must be unemployed, underemployed or have exhausted their unemployment compensation benefits.

Special consideration will be given to persons unemployed for at least 15 weeks, military veterans, welfare recipients, former trainees in other manpower programs, and poverty-level individuals as defined by Office of Economic Opportunity guidelines.

Heavy rains turn his lot into a lake

WOODROW SMITH points to the area that was seriously flooded on Friday, Jan. 10. "The water was two inches above the ground. It ran into my well, and through my garage, spoiling a bunch of chicken feed and some cement bags."

By RICHARD GOLD

CANTON—Woodrow Smith owns 10 acres of land at 42690 Cherry Hill Road. He calls his property "a 10-acre lake."

While this angry comment is not entirely accurate, there is a degree of truth to it. A good portion of Smith's land has been covered with water (now ice) since last Friday's rain storm. His neighbor, Edward Meixner, has been similarly afflicted with flooding problems.

In the past such a storm would not have caused a problem—or "a 10-acre lake"—but since the development of two subdivisions across the street, on the south side of Cherry Hill, Smith's property has been without surface water drainage.

Smith and Meixner complained vigorously to various township and county officials in the past several months trying to avoid a flood—but to no avail. In fact until Tuesday, no help was in sight.

Apparently, though, everyone concerned wih the problem was not called. When contacted, Richard Lewiston of Practical Homebuilders (the land development firm) said it was the first he had heard of the problem. "No one has mentioned anything to me," he commented. "But we are more than willing to agree with what the township engineers decide."

A second call confirmed that Lewiston was willing to cooperate, and relief is apparently on the way. After talking to township engineer Glenn Roberts, Lewiston told Roberts he would foot the bill for the drain reconstruction. He added, "I hope to have the necessary work done as soon as possible."

THE PROBLEM for Smith and Meixner began in the spring of 1974, when utilities for the two subdivisions, Cherry Hill Orchards and Tanglewood, were installed.

A sanitary sewer, gas and electric facilities were installed in front of Smith's house and a third lane was added to Cherry Hill to reduce traffic hazards that might arise when the subdivisions were completed and occupied.

However, the utilities were installed on the north side of Cherry Hill, in front of Smith's and Meixner's properties. So was the additional portion of the road.

The construction forced the removal of the drainage ditch that ran next to Cherry Hill in front of the two properties, and effictively blocked all the surface drainage from the two yards.

Smith had two tiles and several ditches that emptied into the roadside ditch (now nonexistent). When the rain fell on Jan. 10, the flooding began.

Although Smith, his wife Dorothy, and Meixner had been complainingfor several months about the lack of drainage facilities, it was not until Lewiston stepped forward that they received any acceptable answers. They had also complained last summer of the dirt and dust that "covered their house and property."

"We couldn't get satisfaction," said Meixner. Added Dorothy Smith, "They just passed the buck—no one wanted to take the responsibility." Her husband commented, "That sewer may mean progress, but it sure isn't for our benefit."

THE ISSUE, aside from the flooding, is still one of accountability. It is not clear who is legally responsible for the reconstruction of the drainage facilities, despite Lewiston's offer to assume the financial obligation.

Roberts explains, "There is no question we have a surface drainage problem here. The real problem, however, is identifying whose responsibility it is to rectify the situation."

Several jurisdictions are involved. Canton, Wade and Trim Assoc., the township engineering firm, and their contractors are responsible for the water main and sanitary sewer installation. Practical Homebuilders paid for those installations "in a round about way," says Roberts. Detroit Edison and Michigan Consolidated are responsible for the gas and electric installations. The county is responsible for the drains and roads.

The question is who is legally responsible for reconstructing the drainage facilities for the affected properties. Up to Tuesday, no one would attempt an answer.

Dorothy Smith said she called "everyone." "I called the health department, the Wayne County Road Commission, the drainage commission, Wade and Trim, and Canton Township. Everyone said they'd be back to fix it— but of course nobody came."

The problem was magnified for the Smiths because Smith, at 62, has a heart condition.

THE BOAT was not supposed to be in water, but after Friday's rain, and the flooding of Woodrow Smith's property, that's where it was.

The flooding caused Smith to comment, "This property is a 10 acre lake-what am I supposed to do, grow crops under water?"

PCDC lures industry to strengthen tax base

By DARLENE STINSON

Residents and businessmen in the Plymouth-Canton area will pay less tax dollars for the same or better services in future years, if the Plymouth-Canton Development Commission (PCDC) has anything to say about it.

Extending feelers toward national and statewide industries and commercial establishments, the PCDC is attempting to entice industry and commerce toward the acres of land zoned commercial and industrial in the Plymouth-Canton area.

"I'm very positive that this area is a strong contender for industrial and commercial growth," maintains PCDC executive director Jim McCartney. "However, we're going to have to aggressively seek it. We have a lot going for us."

ATTEMPTS to bring industry and commerce to the area should build a sturdy tax base if successful, says McCartney, lowering taxes for local residents and small businessmen.

"Most communities want to have that kind of tax base," McCartney maintains. "If they don't, residents will end up paying the high cost of community services. That tax base is an important factor.

"It also provides an opportunity for local residents to be employed. The same dollar a resident makes in a local industry will be turning over in the community. It keeps all the funds that are being earned and taxed within the community to pay for community services."

Many communities, however, have the same objective in mind.

"This is a very competitive type of business," McCartney said. "We're competing with other suburban communities in the Detroit area, if not communities throughout the entire country. If we're going to be in front of the competitive game, we have to be willing to assist corporate officials.

"That's what this job is all about—selling," McCartney emphasized. "Different salesmen have many products. My job is to sell the community."

TO STRENGTHEN the Plymouth-Canton fight for industry and commerce, the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and the PCDC, formerly a separate organization with a part-time director, were joined by an important hinge, McCartney, who was appointed in October to serve as executive director of both.

Although both organizations have maintained separate boards of directors, PCDC operations, funded by $4,000 which the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township and the Plymouth Community School District each have contributed, are conducted from the Chamber of Commerce office on a contractual basis.

"To make the PCDC an even more positive vehicle, it (the board of directors) made this move," McCartney explained. "The Chamber of Commerce is very much interested in the growth of the area, a viable economy of the area and other people to share the tax burden.

"There was an overlap between the PCDC and the Chamber of Commerce before," he said, "and now we're pulling everything together."

To add more muscle to the Plymouth-Canton fight for industry and commerce, more selling tools are needed, according to McCartney.

"THE ONGOING objective can be realized easier by having more tools," said McCartney, as he pointed to piles of brochures promoting other communities atop his desk. "These all become sale tools. We need more tools of this nature."

Pointing to an out-dated aerial map of the Plymouth-Canton area that hangs upon his office wall, McCartney added. "We need up-to-date aerial maps to give a good idea of what's going on in the community, so we can provide that one-stop service to the corporate executive.

"With an aerial map we can do most of our talking from this office," he said. "If an area looks good, we can get in the car and buzz out there."

Corporate executives, looking at the Plymouth-Canton area as a potential site for plants or offices, come to McCartney's office to have their questions answered.

To provide the needed answers, McCartney works closely with the Plymouth business community, the Canton Township Chamber of Commerce and the administrative staff of the city of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township.

"THAT'S SO important," McCartney said. "I must say I've been very pleased by the positive attitude I've seen in the Plymouth-Canton area (toward industrial growth). I believe this will help make the area one of the fastest growing in terms of industrial dollars in the next couple of years."

The Plymouth-Canton area, according to McCartney is fast becoming an attractive area for industries and businesses.

The expressway planned for the Schoolcraft corridor will link the area to downtown Detroit, while the proposed I-275 route will link the community to I-96, I-94 and I-75, avoiding heavy traffic on I-75 in downtown Detroit.

Most of the industrial growth in the Detroit metropolitan area is concentrated in Macomb and Oakland counties, McCartney noted. Industrial expansion in those counties, however, has reached a point as far north from Detroit as Plymouth and Canton are west.

"Truckers coming from states to the south of us are even closer to the Plymouth-Canton area than to Macomb and Oakland counties," he said. "Just look at the growth that's taken place here already. When major industries come in, it kind of says to the community, 'We're all right.'

"Companies like Meijer's don't make major expenditures in Canton without sound thinking," McCartney said. "I know there's acres and acres of land out there, and other industries will notice."

Stockmeyer named to state board

WESTLAND—When Norman Stockmeyer, 67, lost his seat on the Wayne State University Board of Governors last November, he had hoped for a few months time to get his private affairs in order. But, a call from Governor William Milliken last week changed all of that.

Stockmeyer, a Westland resident who served on the Wayne-Westland Board of Education from 1946-61, has been appointed to fill the vacancy on the State Board of Education caused by the resignation of William A. Sederburg. Sederburg has become the director of research for the Republicans in the House of Representatives.

"I guess I'm like the old fire horse," says Stockmeyer, "who has decided to go to just one more fire."

"PEOPLE TEND to play little games when partisanship is involved. It's pretty difficult for a young man who wants a political career to vote against his party. Education just is too important for that kind of thing," he says.

He also would like to see the state board's membership changed from eight to seven or nine, maintaining it is too difficult to reach decisions.

"An even split makes the board unworkable," he says.

Because of political campaigning, many businessmen have been discouraged from running for the university regencies and the state board, he says.

"Education in Michigan has missed a lot of fine people. They refuse to go to conventions and beg for votes."

The expense spent on campaigning in newspapers and on radio and television has also kept many qualified persons out of the running, he says.

"In my last election, I didn't get five cents of help. Today, to carry on a campaign without the media, a candidate just can't make an impact."

Stockmeyer says he will be spending his first year in Lansing learning how things work on the state level.

" I'm not going up there with any preconceived notions. I hope to bring some experience and help form some general policy," says Stockmeyer, who has served for more than 30 years on various educational boards.

He believes that board members should deal with policy and educational philosophy, and let the administrators carry out the programs.

"That's why professional educators are hired. If the board doesn't like what an administrator is doing, they should get rid of them. But, they shouldn't meddle."

One of the first things Stockmeyer will do is resign as a member of the Wayne County Intermediate School Board, where he has been a member since 1961.

HE EXPRESSED concern over the labor problems between the Michigan Education Association and local school boards and hopes the legislature and staff personnel on the state level can work something out

"I really feel sorry for the kids. They feel like they are being used as pawns," he says.

Stockmeyer is a 1929 graduate of Wayne State University and holds a masters degree in business from Harvard. He is the president of the the Wayne Investment Co.

In 1955, he served on the President's White House Conference on Education and is a co-chairman of the Wayne County Community College Advisory Committee.

Board adds meetings

PLYMOUTH—The Plymouth School Board is planning on putting in a little overtime beginning Jan. 25.

Approving a motion by board secretary Marcia Borowski, the board agreed to set up special meetings for the next few months on Saturday mornings to catch up on some pressing business.

The topic of the first meeting, which will be held at the board offices and open to the public, is proposed budget cuts. The school board learned early last month that the Plymouth Schools will lose approximately $150,000 in state school aid. The board will be looking over up some $300,000 of items that can be trimmed to finallyu pare off the $150,000 figure.

Other topics planned for the biweekly weekend morning sessions include study of in service programs and staffing, board by-laws, and a review of the exceptional child study report recently prepared by teachers and interested parents in the district.

The Saturday special meetings will be in addition to Saturday workshop sessions, which the board will hold on remaining Saturday mornings.

Some board members expressed doubt that they would be able to attend the additional sessions, but if a quorum of four members is present, the meetings will be held.

Park bands set concert

PLYMOUTH—The Plymouth Centennial Park Bands, under the direction of James R. Griffith and Robert G. Burr, will present the 10th annual band show "Variety Is..." Friday and Saturday evenings at 8 p.m. in the Plymouth Salem High auditorium.

Included in the array of bands will be the Centennial Park Symphony Band premiering, for its Plymouth audience, "Part I of Armenian Dances," by Alfred Reed.

The concert band will present, as one of its selections, "Symphonic Overture" by Carter, while the varsity band will feature "American Folk Rhapsody No. 3" by Clare Grundman.

In addition to the musical presentations, a number of student variety productions will be offered by Master of Ceremonies, Robert DeLano, including the world premiere of the newly discovered Agronowitzian Harold Trumpet.

Other muscial features include the stage band's performance of "Doc's Holiday" by Nestico, featuring Bill Lucas as trumpet soloist. The stage band will also perform two pieces from the Maynard Ferguson Library: "Mac's Park" and "Hey Jude."

For the grande finale of the evening performances, the Centennial Park Marching Band, freshly back from Florida, will perform its Orange Bowl sequence including "Goal Line Blues" and "Triumphal March" from Quo Vadis.

Tickets for both performances will be available from any of the 270 Centennial Park Band members and there will also be limited ticket sales at the door. A family ticket priced at $5 will be available for the first time this year, granting admission for families including up to six people. Adult tickets are priced at $2 with student admissions set at $1.

$207,000 trimmed from W-W budget

WESTLAND — Because of an order to cut state aid to local school districts by Gov. William Milliken, the Wayne-Westland Community School District is cutting corners in an atmept to keep a balanced budget.

Supt. Timothy Dyer has announced the district is cutting more than $207,000 out of the budget to comply with the governor's order.

Among the cuts will be the elimination of out -district field trips, for which the district was required to pay. Such a cut will save the district $10,000. Because of state law, a district is required to pay for curriculum related field trips. Other trips are financed through student contributions, say school officials.

The largest cut will be in elementary and secondary school supplies by 15 per cent. A $75,000 savings will be made under such a move. This 15 per cent reduction in spending was achieved by ordering the building administrators to spend only 85 per cent on supplies since last August, according to Dyer.

"MICHIGAN HAS been the most severely hit state, because of the economic conditions. There is no appeal to this order. We must cut," he says.

Described by one administrator as like squeezing blood from a turnip, this budget cut may be only the beginning of state ordered cuts.

"We are very fearful that this is the beginning of three such cuts," says Dyer. "There is every indication the governor will issue an order for more cuts in April that will equal or be in excess of this cut."

The present cuts won't have any effect on the curriculum, according to Dyer.

"These haven't cut severely into any programs. We can withstand this comfortably."

Another cut will be accomplished through attrition of seven teaching spots in the secondary schools. This means seven retiring teachers' spots will remain unfilled in the two district high schools and five junior high schools, say officials.

The attrition cut will save $26,000.

Custodians will be removed from the midnight shifts and transferred to the afternoon, so the schools' electricty can be shut down and heat turned down. Electricity and heating savings will amount to $35,000.

OPERATING ON a $29 million budget, the district receives half of its revenue through state aid.

Custodian costs will be decreased by absorbing absenteeism for a three day period, instead of replacement in the first day. This will save the district $20,000.

Cuts will also will be made in capital outlay (purchases of more than $500), secretarial help and gasoline for buses on field trips.

42932 Cherry Hill, managed to dig out the drains on his property. "I had two sump pumps going full blast just to keep the water from coming up to the house. Then on Friday I dug through three feet of mud so I could uncover the storm sewer. But Woody can't dig out like that."

Said Meixner, "We gave them the right of way for the swer, but they cut down a big tree in front of my house, and they put in that sewer vent in front of his house (Smith's). Pointing to the frozen mud in the front of both their yards he added, " and look at the lawn."

Insult was added to injury when Mrs. Smith claimed that Roberts told her husband to "haul the water." "He told us where there was free water and how to go get it."

Roberts contends that Wade and Trim are not the bad guys. "We got caught in the middle of this thing and we're still trying to get it straightened out. I understand their viewpoint but they fail to realize that this is not necessarily our jurisdiction. We're doing everything we can to get it settled." Roberts also said he did not tell Smith to go haul his water.

While Lewiston has offered to reconstruct the necessary drainage facilites, all is not taken care of.

Roberts explains, "Dick will take care of everything but those two plugged pipes. I don't know what will happen with them. That's definitely the responsibility of the road commission."

The problem of Smith's well also remains unresolved, although it may not have been polluted in the first place. George Barrett of the Wayne County Board of Health explains, "It depends on the construction of the well. It depends on how deep it is, where the pump is located and other technical details. If it is polluted, it can be decontaminated—but again that depends on technical considerations."

Cancer drive set

CANTON—The American Cancer Society will distribute information on cancer's warning signals and ask Canton Township residents for financial support of the society's research, educational and patient programs during April.

Canton phones change

CANTON—The township offices have been reorganized, and part of that effort includes a change in the phone number.

The new number for the township office is 326-6400. Township officers can be reached there, while the building and water department employes can be reached at 326-6404 and 326-6405.

Township supervisor Robert Greenstein says that the change in the phone system will provide more efficient service to township residents.

"This way we don't have nine people picking up the phone at one time. Instead we will have one person answering the phone and eight working on other matters."

Class teaches students how to think creatively

By SUSAN AVERILL

On the Orchard Ridge campus of Oakland Community College tucked away in one of the corners of "M" building, is an office which goes by the unlikely name of "GROP shop."

And out of that office flow some of the newest philosophies on job hunting and placement ever to stiffen the spine of the prospective job seeker.

"I believe that a student—or anyone—should use creative energy to find a job," said Barbara Kabcenell, coordinator of the GROP shop.

GROP is an acronym for Graduate Opportunities for Placement, and is pronounced as though it rhymes with "shop."

Although such things as student resumes are generated by the shop, the major emphasis is placed on encouragement in the face of today's disheartening job market.

BARBARA KABCENELL

"YOU DON'T have to feel diminished because you're on the hunting end of the situation," Ms. Kabcenell said. "No matter what your skills are, you still have something to offer.

"Somewhere, some employer is looking for precisely the skills you have.

"You should go into an interview with a positive self-image," she said.

However, it doesn't mean you should get up on your high horse, she warned.

"The job may not be exactly what you're looking for, and you may not want to accept it. I'm not saying that you should refuse a job which pays $3 per hour, if you feel you're worth $4 an hour," she said.

Job hunting is a difficult thing, and one of the main problems is poor attitude, she said.

"TOO MANY people approach an interview by saying to themselves, 'Oh gosh, what if he doesn't like me?'

"You've got to realize that this isn't the only job in the world. You're not the low man on the totem pole."

If you have a feeling of self-worth, you do much better on an interview, she said.

The GROP shop doesn't concern itself with appropriate dress, or whether or not to call first for an appointment. Those are basic, and most everyone knows them already, she said.

"People need to be told how to act," she said. "They need to realize that it's not a personal thing."

An interview may go well or poorly, depending not only on the interviewee, but on the interviewer as well.

"THE WAY an interview goes for an individual, is partly the way the employer goes about interviewing," she said.

It's for this reason that she'd like someday to have a workshop for employers.

"I'd like to emphasize the importance of being nice and kind. Sometimes employers forget to give feedback, and just sit in stony silence. What kind of interview will that give?"

A friend of hers who interviewed recently for a job and thought everything had gone well was disappointed to learn another had been hired.

Curiosity as well as disappointment prompted the woman to call the interviewer to see what had gone wrong.

"AS IT turned out, she had done nothing wrong. It was just that the other person had more impressive credentials," Ms. Kabcenell said.

"What's important is that the woman did something to help herself. Sometimes you have to take the bull by the horns and ask them to be helpful in that direction."

Significant criteria when job hunting includes the happiness it will afford both yourself and the employer.

"If you're not happy, you don't do as well. You won't be of value to your employer, and your own self image will suffer," she said.

"Your main consideration should be the quality of life you want to have."

If you don't get the job, or if you're released after a probationary period, it is more often a cause for relief than disappointment, she said.

"YOU CAN FEEL if you've been doing well," she said. "If it hasn't been working out, it's much better to your future or fellow employes, employer and yourself to leave.

"You should certainly go on without too much feeling of diminishment. Honestly assess what you did wrong and what you could do better.

"Ask your employer, try to get him to be more verbal. It will be much help to you later on, when you give it a go again," she said.

Self-esteem may be at an all-time low for those who have been laid off due to company cutbacks, and for that reason, it is important for them to get back into the job market, Ms. Kabcenell said.

"It's important to try and find an interim job, especially if there is no other income to the family. Even just to feel valuable and useful."

If the money isn't needed, the time can be put to good use with volunteer work, she said.

Area committees form to oversee CDA requests

LIVONIA—Citizen "watchdog" committees will begin compiling statistics in the next few weeks for possible use in challenging communities which have applied for federal funds under the Community Development Act (CDA) of 1974, but fail to identify adequately the need for moderate and low-income housing.

A Dec. 6 meeting in Pilgrim United Church of Christ Church in Livonia was one of several scheduled in the area to discuss the role of the volunteer citizens group in monitoring community applications for the federal grant.

The monitoring will be done under the banner of the Coalition for Block Grant Compliance (CBGC).

SPOKESMEN at the Livonia meeting were Joe Guggenheim, director of the Michigan Committee on Law and Housing, based in Detroit, and Clifford Shrupp, director of the Northwest Inter-Faith Center for Racial Justice.

In attendance were citizen volunteers from Westland, Garden City, Farmington Hills, as well as Livonia.

The volunteer corps was briefed by Guggenheim on the new federal act that encompasses HUD-administered funds as well as combining seven former revenue-sharing-type federal block grants.

THE NEW ACT allows cities to use funds for a range of community developments, such as parks, water and sewer lines and recreational facilities among others.

But a key goal of the act is to improve the availability of housing in the community, particularly for low- and moderate-income families.

It is this aspect of the act that the volunteer coalition is primarily interested in, explains Guggenheim.

WITHOUT special efforts being made, he says, it would be easy for local governments to sidestep the law without coming to the attention of the U.S. Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Department.

"We would hope," Guggenheim said, "local government will comply with the law on its own initiative. If not, a positive reminder from citizen volunteers may encourage compliance while the city is still in the application stage."

Most cities expect to have their applications completed by the end of January in order to be reviewed by area agencies (including SEMCOG) before submission to the federal agency by March 1.

IF THE LAW'S requirements are ignored, Guggenheim continued, then the information gahtered by the watchdog committee will be transmitted to HUD officials.

Watchdogs will monitor CDA grand applications involving $5 million in Livonia; $5 million in Westland and $585,000 in Garden City. The funds cover a three-year period.

Some of the data being sought by the committees include: the amount of vacant land zoned for or suitable for new housing construction; a summarization of deteriorated or substandard housing within a city; information on the racial composition of work force in the community; information showing where employes of major companies reside and facts on planned or projected expansion of employment opportunities in the city.

The latter category could be extremely important to the committee's work, Shrupp explained.

Using the proposed regional shopping center at Six Mile and Newburgh roads in Livonia as an example, Shrupp indicated that Livonia's housing survey should include a plan to provide some housing to accommodate that retail work force.

Attention: How to cut your clothes budget in half!

There are things you can do with Stretch & Sew patterns that you can't do with other patterns. Like creative variations. And making clothes that fit perfectly.
Take our Basic Dress pattern, for example. You can make one style or you can make many different styles with the same basic pattern and easy-to-follow instructions. It's really not such a basic pattern after all.
The things you can do with every Stretch & Sew pattern are almost unlimited. The best way to get sewing with Stretch & Sew patterns and knits is in a Stretch & Sew class. New classes are starting all the time. Call now for class schedules and information. 662-3179

Wayne 2nd District Dems re-elect Stempien chairman

By TIM RICHARD

An unhappy group of Plymouth delegates gave Marvin R. Stempien only a little trouble as he won a second term as Democratic chairman in the Wayne County portion o

Barbara Johnson of Livonia, recent county commissioner candidate, first vice chairman; Earl Dey of Plymouth, second vice chairman; Alan C. Helmkamp of Livonia, third vice chairman; Larry VanderMolen of Northville Township, fourth vice chairman.

Sandy Raymond of Livonia, recording secretary; Bob LaMond of Livonia, corresponding secretary; Gerald C. Davis of Livonia, candidate for the county commissioner nomination last August, treasurer; Becky Tavarozzi of Livonia, sergeant at arms; Irving W. Rozian of Plymouth Township, parliamentarian.

Paul Quennville, Beatrice McDonald and James Duffin, all of Livonia, trustees.

BEN CREECH, a City of Plymouth delegate, protested the one-by-one method of electing the three trustees and the 30 other board members, saying he would file a protest with state officials. He asked for cumulative voting.

In cumulative voting, if (say) 10 persons are to be elected, a delegate may cast one vote for each of 10 persons or plunk all 10 votes behind a single candidate. The method is often favored by small minority groups seeking at least some representation on a board elected at-large.

The Wayne-2nd convention rejected cumulative voting as well as turning down a compromise plan that would have given Livonia 20 at-large seats and the Plymouth-Northville area 10.

The dissatisfied group from Plymouth appeared to include Lorraine Watt, a new precinct delegate replacing Mahlon Green, who reportedly moved to Walled Lake; Marcia Borowski, a school board member in her non-partisan politics; Marda Benson, a new delegate and also a school board member; Creech; Richard and Elaine McGlinn, and Mike Clinansmith.

Several of the group left the convention long before it was over.

Mrs. Benson was an appointed replacement for Robert Dwyer, who moved to Ann Arbor. Dwyer is a former secretary of state branch manager and ex-chairman of the entire 2nd District organization. Dwyer reportedly is working for the new "Good Morning, Michigan" publication, whose publisher happens to be George Wahr Sallade of the Progressive Democratic caucus.

PURPOSE OF Saturday's local convention was to pick delegates to the state convention who in turn will pick the party chairman and State Central Committee.

The local delegation will cast 49 of the 158 votes in the entire 2nd Congressional District. Attending will be all elected brecinct delegates and any person who had paid party dues by last Dec. 31.

A probable front-runner for the 2nd District chairmanship, which will be decided at a caucus Jan. 25, is Don Poirier, 39. He counts on support from his home base of Monroe, seemed to have a highly favorable reception from Wayne and claims about 20 votes so far in Washtenaw.

Poirier is assistant controller of Michigan pas Utilities, a party member since 1970 and a two-term treasurer of the Monroe County Democratic organization.

More importantly, he has been a leader in Monroe for the 1972 congressional candidacy of Stempien and the 1974 candidacy of John Reuther. Poirier said Reuther was speaking on his behalf in Washtenaw.

Poirier told delegates "there's no reason we can't beat that man," meaning incumbent Republican Congressman Marvin Esch. Poirier criticized many Democrats for being too concerned about the relative power of "liberals versus conservatives" within the party and too little concerned with "objectives" — beating Esch.

IN ACTION ON resolutions, the Wayne-2nd convention:

•Backed away from any resolution on the Crestwood teacher strike.

•Voted overwhelming support of legislation to protect "the rights of nonsmokers" in public places. Quipped one Democrat: "Anyone who will smoke in a room with 'no smoking' signs will drink in church."

Police suspect arson

LIVONIA—The 17th garage fire in seven months, all apparently started by an arsonist, completely destroyed the garage, all its contents and a car at 29689 MacIntyre early Saturday morning.

Fire Inspector Donald Donnelley said the fire, which started in the rear of the garage about 4 a.m., was so intense it broke out the kitchen window of the attached home and scorched the back of the house.

According to the inspector, the resident, Robert Johnston, 55, came home at 1 a.m., put his car in the garage and went into the house, leaving the garage door open.

Neighbors spotted the fire, and alerted Johnston who tried to put it out himself.

Det. Sgt. Shirley Garrison, who has been working on the previous garage arson cases, said it is believed this fire may have been started by the same person.

"The method of operation in this fire is the same as the previous ones," Garrison said. "The arsonist always attacks a garage with an open door. He never uses gasoline or any other combustible substance to start the fire," he added.

All the fires were started on weekends and all in the southeast part of the city, he said.

Estimated damage in Saturday's fire was $5,000, Donnelley said.

KIM HUYSKEN (left) and Shelly Smith are learning that girl scouting is not all tying knots and earning badges. Here they help prepare logs that will be sold as firewood to raise money for a Troop 620 trip. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel)

'It was not hard work—when you're with friends you don't even notice you're working. It's nice to know we're all contributing to our big trip.'

Scouts learn LOG-istics to finance trip

BY SHERRY KAHAN

For most of the day the fire that burned near them had flames reaching 40 feet into the air. But members of Livonia Girl Scout Troop 620 were too busy to stop and roast marshmallows.

They were in Belleville with saws and sledges to cut wood so they could sell it as firewood to raise money for a troop project.

The weather was cold as they slashed branches, measured logs and fed brush into the fire. But who cared when they knew that with the money earned by their efforts the troop would go on a two-week vacation the following summer.

But they did have to admit that this was a little different from some of their other fund-raising projects. While they once baked and decorated cakes for fun and profit, now they were about to sell logs for $25 a face cord (18 inches wide, four feet high and eight feet long.)

"I HAVE A FRIEND in Belleville, who had some trees bulldozed on her property," said Mrs. Joseph Zedan. She and her her husband, Joe, lead this troop which meets in Emerson School.

"She told us that if we would cut up the trees, carry off the wood and burn the brush, we could have the wood," she added.

Scout members voted in favor of the project, knowing it would bring in funds to take them to historic spots of colonial America as well as battlefields of the Civil War.

So the logging plans were worked out. Sledges, saws and wedges were secured. Three fathers who could run chain saws were enrolled.

A truck was borrowed from George Wakefield, who once was a member of a troop led by Zedan. Two nights of winter camping were planned and the necessary food and drink obtained.

"THE GIRLS were up at 7 a.m. the morning of the first workday," said Mrs. Zedan. "They cooked their breakfast and started work a little after eight. They worked until five that night. I mean, THEY WORKED!

"They first marked all the fallen trees in 18-inch lengths. They sawed off the branches so that the logs were ready for the chain saw."

After the fathers sent the sawdust flying, the girls carried the logs to the splitting area.

"Using wedges and sledges, they split the wood into sizes that will fit a fireplace," said Mrs. Zedan.

She added: "About 40 minutes before lunch, we stopped adding brush and branches to the fire. We raked out hot coals and the girls cooked lunch. They brought everything from pork chops to stew and canned spaghetti."

SEVENTEEN GIRLS participated in the project the first Sunday, and 14 the second Sunday. Fourteen face cords were the result.

Michele Stadler and Diane Dallas recently unloaded wood at a Rosedale Gardens home.

"It took the two of us about 25 minutes to unload and stack all the logs in the customer's yard," reported Michele, who is not sure she will be able to take the trip this summer with the troop. She may go west with her family.

"I liked the whole project," she added. "The work was fun. My main job was sawing off branches."

"It was not hard work," noted Diane. "When you're working with friends, you don't even notice you're working. It's nice to know we're all contributing to our big trip.

"It's also nice that as a group we are doing something we all voted on. We're helping the lady in Belleville clean up her area and we're helping ourselves."

MRS. ZEDAN noted that "the wood is oak, hickory, maple and ash, all hardwood," adding, "there's another 30 cords out there which we can cut up and sell when we get ambitious again."

She explained that when the girls camped out overnight in Belleville they slept outside without shelter.

"Each camper had a piece of plastic," she said. "One part is used for a ground sheet and other other is tied by a rope to a tree to serve as a windbreaker."

In these simple lean-to arrangements, the girls slept through the December night.

"They know how to sleep outdoors because we camp out every month," said Mrs. Zedan. "We're soon to go on a Snovival expedition in the Holly recreation area. We'll camp out the entire weekend in tents.

"A cabin isn't a challenge. You spend more time doing housework in a cabin than hiking and working outdoors. We're not an inside-oriented group, and Joe and I both like the outdoors."

Perhaps that is why Mr. and Mrs. Zedan have been in scouting for 18 years. Zedan, who has worked mostly with Boy Scouts has been leader of Troop 620 for more than two years. Mrs. Zedan is co-leader.

Nutritional advice gets varied reaction

By MARGARET MILLER

"I've been paying a lot more attention to what I get in the food I buy. I'm getting so I even check the labels when I pick dogfood."

Jenny Cervenan had stopped by one of the nutritional advisory stands set up in many Wrigley's supermarkets for a one-day program last Friday.

She said she was trying to learn more about nutrition all the time and she was glad of any advice Irene Cameron, home economist who lives in Livonia, could give her in the more complicated aspects of the subject.

MRS. CERVENAN, though, wasn't really your typical shopper.

Many, in a hurry to get on with the coming weekend, zipped by the stands where volunteer home economists were set to dispense advice, both via leaflet and in person.

Others accepted printed pamphlets and murmured something about "anything to help cut costs" would be helpful.

In at least three of the Wrigley stores in this area, the promised advice was not at hand. Because of scheduling problems with the volunteer home economists, shoppers in Garden City and Westland would have been hard put to get extra help.

But Livonia, Redford Township and Plymouth stores had tables set up and women who had made a study of nutrition ready to both hand out meal planning ideas and interpret new governmental programs connected with foods.

"I HAD A LOT of questions about food stamps, said Lizette MacFarlane of Plymouth, who had a stand set up in the store at Ann Arbor Road and Haggerty.

"There was one husband and wife who came in to shop—both had been laid off for several weeks and yet they didn't know they were eligible for food stamps. I gave them the information on how to apply."

Coloring books with pictures of nutritional foods were handed out to a lot of youngsters perched in basket seats, and one mother took one with the words that it might be helpful to her junior girl scout daughter working on a nutrition badge.

Helen Hermans of Plymouth, on duty in another store, said several shoppers asked her about cutting meat costs and she had urged higher use of protein fill-ins like beans and peanut butter.

One woman told her "I'd like to learn anything I can—I have been cutting every corner I can and the bills are STILL too high."

IRENE CAMERON, who took a day off from her work with the Dairy Council of Michigan, had on display an overgrown milk carton that showed the kind of nutritional label that soon will be required by law.

She could show customers just how the labels listing the amount of nutrition per serving and the percentages of U.S. recommended daily allowances will help shoppers make wiser choices.

She also dispensed a few hints like the one that came from the labels on two cans of pineapple, one diet pack and one regular.

"This shows," she said, "that the dietic can actually has seven more calories per can than the regular one, yet it costs several cents more."

Mrs. Cameron said she was glad to note, both in studying recent surveys and in noting the contents of parts that passed her stand, that the increased costs seem to have reduced consumption of "junk" foods.

"Potato chips and pretzels really are down in sales," she said.

Some tips for economical shopping

Here are a few hints for nutritious shopping compiled by Marilyn Nagy, of the home economics department of Mercy College of Detroit.

b Encourage your family to keep an open mind and try new foods, recipes and combinations.

b Plan your menus based on foods that are plentiful and on special sales.

• Cut down on empty calories (foods that provide calories, but no nutrition such as pop and potato chips.

• Shop when you are not hungry. Studies show people spend more when they are hungry.

• Plan your menus so they are nutritious and attractive without being gourmet.

• Discourage the use of sugar covered cereals in your home.

• Cook only needed quantities, resisting temptation to cook a little extra.

• Gradually reduce your family's intake of high cost complete proteins from meat. Substitute proteins from cheese, eggs and peanut butter.

• Take advantage of food stamps if you meet the eligibility criteria.

• Save plastic bags for re-use.

• Leave the children at home when you shop. Studies show more purchases are made when parents shop with children.

• Modify your entertaining. Have potluck suppers or give your guests a simple evening snack rather than a dinner.

• Prepare nutritious snacks such as carrot sticks, homemade pizza snacks and cheese to satisfy your family's craving for snack food.

• Shop by cost per serving, rather than price per pound or box. (The leaner meat, more expensive by the pound, may be cheaper in the long run than a fatty, inexpensive cut that has a lot of bone.)

• Comparison shop, but don't waste gas driving to several stores each week.

• Recognize that convenience usually costs money. (Convenience foods have a place in food buying, but how often they are used can make a big difference in total food budgeting.)

• Keep track of actual supermarket expenditures for a month to evaluate how you actually spend your supermarket dollar. How much goes for paper goods? How much for cleaning supplies? How much for empty calorie snack foods? How much for food needed to meet nutritional needs?

•Resist buying foods on sale that your family won't eat, yet take advantage of those that are a good buy that they will eat.

• Compare the cost per unit, using unit pricing posted on supermarket shelves to see which size is the best buy. Remember the large size is not always a better buy, particularly if it only gets wasted or is eaten by those who don't need the extra food intake.

• Place the extra pork chop that comes in the food package into the freezer, carefully wrapped, so it can become part of another meal.

• Take the time to store food properly when you come from the store in order to minimize waste.

• Use left-overs without expensive additions. (Adding pimentos and mushrooms to left-over chicken is not necessarily economical.)

• Wrap meat in usable portions before storing in freezer so the exact amount needed can be removed easily.

• Use private brands of food and compare them in quality and cost to national brands.

• Clean with more homemade preparations. Use fewer aerosol and specialized cleaners. (Ammonia in a custard cup in a closed oven overnight makes oven cleaning much easier the next day.)

• Put food back on supermarket shelves in the correct place if you decide not to purchase it. Meats left on food shelves spoil and raise the overhead cost of the store. This is passed on to consumers.

Femininity makes news says fashion coordinator

By SHIRLEE IDEN

Glueck, vice-president of Jonathan Logan, was in the area recently to moderate a fashion show of Scene II designs, the company's latest adaptations of French fashion.

"There's a new mood of femininity," Glueck said.

GLUECK DOES his scouting in Paris and the fashion centers of the world, and Scene II is aimed at adapting them into moderate priced versions for the average woman.

He forecasts a return to the easy chemise and called it a "naive chemise."

Strong stress was placed on two-piece outfits, both long and short, which Glueck said made sense for mixing and matching.

Lots of long beads and the short-haired curly look are part of what he termed "the nostalgia of the 1920s seen today on Paris streets."

"CLOTHES SHOULD not be serious," he said.

The dresses shown were a little longer, all knee-covering, many were flounced with ruffles and most were seasonless fabrics, many washable.

Peplums popped out of some versions.

"YOU'LL SEE lots of shirts on shirts," Glueck said. "All are part of a dress-down, dress-up way of fashion."

Fabrics were washable and fluid, and panne velvet was featured in several.

"Black is beautiful, and the two-piece look is new all over the world," Glueck said.

In all, the new clothes reflect a return to feminity, an addition to the sportswear in today's woman's wardrobes.

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

In all the agonizing hassle about teacher strikes, a crucial point has got lost in the shuffle: Just why did the Legislature originally pass a state law prohibiting strikes by public employes, including teachers?

The reasons are three. One is bad; one is only moderately good; one is very good.

1. Because the Legislature back when it passed the law forbidding public employe strikes was controlled by lawmakers who were generally rural mugwumps, thoroughly opposed to any kind of union activity. In today's times, and particularly with respect to schools in the metropolitan area, this is simply silly and out of date. Teacher unions are a fact of life; passing laws preventing their existence simply will not work.

2. Public employes ought to be prohibited from striking because, as public employes work for the public at large, there is nobody to bargain with or strike against.

In broad terms this argument has some sense; a strike by public employes is a strike against citizens in general, and does not readily fall within the classical reconciliation of labor and management interests that the collective bargaining process imposes.

In the narrower context of school boards and teachers, however, school boards are elected to be the representatives of the local taxpaying public; hence the school boards are the bargaining agent for the public, and the ultimate constraint on the collective bargaining process is the public's willingness to pay for schools and teacher salaries.

3. WHEN TEACHERS strike, the real losers are the children whose education is jerked around and botched up, but who are not and cannot be part of the collective bargaining process. This is a thoroughly sensible reason to prohibit teacher strikes, yet it is a point so far lost in the juvenile display of emotionalism that has so far characterized discussions of the problem.

What recourse do the children have when teachers strike? Boycott the classroom? State law requires their attendance, and anyway a boycott would be self defeating. Vote against millage? They can't.

What shall the children do when school boards become intransigent and refuse to bargain? Urge their parents to vote down millage? This would not be in their interest, which must be quality education. Run for school board? State law prohibits candidates for office under 18.

What can the children do when the Legislature fiddles around with an absurd patchwork of state laws that virtually guarantees teacher strikes? Vote against the cowardly legislators? Most school children cannot vote.

The teachers have their unions; the public has its school board; school administrators have their state association. But what organized group represents the children? None. Not only are the children an unorganized group, but they are prohibited by state law from doing much to protect their interests.

The net result in this elaborate minuet of power politics with each interest group claiming to be acting in the children's interest is that the kids get the shaft.

It's a damn shame, and I think it's high time the teachers and the school boards and the legislators started talking about the real point—the kids whose educations are being ruined.

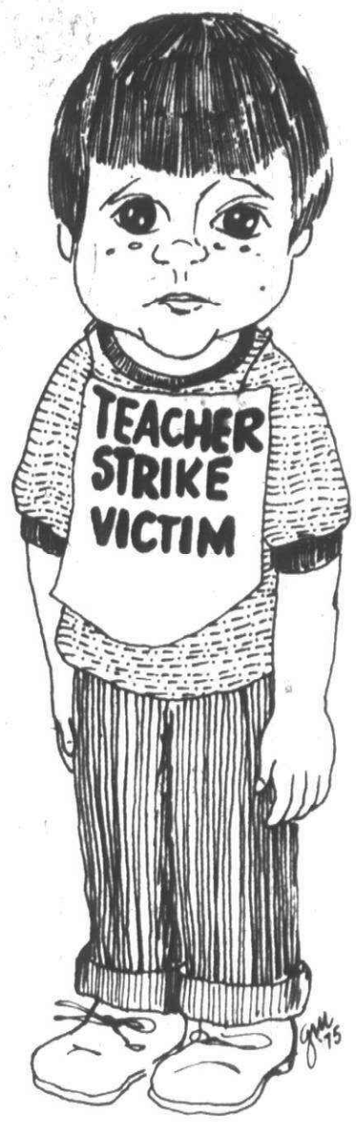
JUST HOW far off the point discussion of teacher strikes has wandered is illustrated by some comments by Plymouth Education Association President Dolly Carter McMaster, reported in this newspaper last week. (The PEA is one of the teacher unions which have decided to support the Crestwood District teachers by sympathy strikes of their own; other local unions which have agreed to strike include Redford Union and South Redford.)

"PEA President Dolly Carter McMaster said she would not attempt to justify her actions or those of members who walk off the job. 'I know that I am breaking the law and the contract, but teachers in Plymouth feel that what is at stake is far greater than their own individual security and our own individual jobs.' "

On the issue of what would happen to Plymouth teachers who did not choose to walk out, Mrs. McMaster said: "There is no legal punitive action that the PEA can take against people who are abiding by the contract. It's as simple as that...However, life can be made hell for them."

When the thinking of supposedly responsible adults gets that twisted, is it any wonder that we all have good cause to be saddened and angered at what's happening to our children today?

LOST IN THE STRUGGLE



Public interest requires binding arbitration

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

A strike is a two-edged sword.

Labor and management are certainly both better off when they can solve their differences through collective bargaining.

A strike should be resorted to only when there is a tremendous gap between what the employer offers and what the employe is asking because, once a strike starts, deep wounds are cut that are difficult to heal.

Obviously, when a strike occurs, the employer is hurt because he usually is put out of business, at least temporarily.

The employe is hurt because he loses wages in the hope that, in the long run, he will gain more than he loses.

But, he is also taking the chance that the employer will try to continue in operation with non-union help and that eventually, the original employes job could disappear.

OF LATE there has been increased conflict in a relatively new field, the withholding of services, or striking, by municipal or educational workers.

The effect of this conflict gets greater notoriety because when ordinary employes strike, few of the public are involved. As soon as governmental employes strike the public in general is involved and so is the general health, education and welfare of the community.

By law, school teachers are not allowed to strike. But there aren't very many judges who have the guts to tell them that.

On the other hand, when the school teachers cannot reach agreement, if they are unable to strike they are severely handicapped in presenting their points of view with any kind of muscle.

In all things that involve the government, the public interest must prevail and strikes by school teachers, for example, certainly dilute their image of professionalism and are extremely disruptive in the educational processes of children.

A condition for working for the government should be the agreement the employe will not withhold his services.

On the other hand, an employe must have the opportunity to present his grievances and ask for just compensation.

THE ONLY TRUE way in which this can happen is if the legislature should pass a law requiring binding arbitration in labor disputes involving governmental workers.

In this type of arrangement, if school teachers feel that they are not paid adequately, they can present their case to an impartial panel and the school district can present its financial case to the same panel and a reasonable judgment, binding on both parties, can be made.

The teachers would retain their professionalism and the important processes of education would continue uninterrupted.

Under the present system some school teachers and some arbitrary school boards may have fun in a strike-baiting situation. But the losers are innocent people, our children.

Road chuckholes appear—and then just stay

R. T. Thompson writes

It has been a long time since the "snow of the century." Time enough for the Wayne County Road Commission to put its crews back on the job of getting the roads back in top condition.

The same thing holds true of those communities which have the responsibility of taking care of the roads and highways. All have taken to cover since the big snow of November, and from all indications they are still under that cover.

At least that's the impression one gets in driving through the communities covered by Observer & Eccentric newspapers, especially after getting a few big jolts from wide, open chuckholes.

THIS IS THE TIME for the appearance of the chuckholes, and we want one and all to know that we have encoountered most of those in Redford Township, Livonia, Plymouth, Farmington, Canton Township and Southfield. And it has been some kind of an experience, especially when driving late at night and suddenly hitting a deep hole.

You know what we're writing about, driving along at a comfortable rate of speed and then suddenly having the wheel jerked out of your hands as you hit a big hole and your head all but lops off.

Then follows some unmentionable language about the Road Commission, their ancestors, their road crews and anyone else that has anything to do with the roads.

Of course, the language doesn't help the situation,but it does give one an opportunity to let off a bit of steam.

Then its back to the wheel and on down the street. Have you tried driving along the streets in Redford recently? If you haven't, then you are in for a real treat. It's just like riding along a road in mid-Mexico where nothing has been done for years to make driving conditions any better.

Up and down, over a bump and then into another, around one big hole only to hit another. That's the way it goes on most of the unpaved streets... of which Redford Township has more than its share.

AND WHEN DOES this condition become worse? Want to guess? Just a few days after you have received your annual tax bill, which shows your taxes are up anywhere from $50 to $150, including a new item of so many dollars for collecting the taxes.

So while you are growling about that new, additional cost on the tax bill, you jump into the car to go to the township hall to make a verbal complaint and then hit the chuckholes.

We feel its about time the road commission crews get rolling and start taking care of the streets again. After all, the tax bill says we are paying so much to the county for road work and it's not getting done.

We realize that scraping the streets now wouldn't accomplish much since the roads will be just as bad when the thaws come later in the year. But it would make driving easier, get one away from all of that needed but not desired up-and-down exercise, and make the tires last longer.

We hope some of the members of the Road Commission read this complaint. We believe in handing out compliments for a job well done, but we believe in complaining when one has trouble sitting down after a rough ride over the chuckhole-filled streets.

Fountain pen lost in the balcony

Tim Richard writes

"You know what my wife gave me for Christmas? It took her months to find one: A fountain pen! I sat there, drawing in ink and letting it gurgle out again."

Until someone mentions the fountain pen, you don't realize how many years it has been since you've seen one. People who went to school before 1960 recall pens and inkwells; then came the ink cartridge, and now all you see are ballpoints and Flares.

Desks in the "grade school" were generally stained from spills of ink in that bygone era. Usually, a boy had a black tip on a fountain pen and could never tell when he had dipped it too far into the inkwell, so he got ink over his fingers every time he loaded up.

And today you can hardly find an inkwell or a fountain pen. Moreover, there are persons who are legally adults who have only the dimmest memories of them; or none at all.

IF YOU WANT to feel young, read Ann Landers on a day when she says someone has "egg on his face." What on earth does it mean to have egg on your face? If you think about it, you can decipher that it means to be embarrassed in some way, but where did the term come from?

I don't know for certain—which is why I feel young—but my guess is that it's a farm term and referred to a dog who stole an egg from the henhouse.

Pick up a high-class magazine and you'll see engineers' drawings of "people movers." Don't they look like speedier versions of the old streetcars? Sure, some of us have ridden on streetcars, but when was the last time you saw one? Ask your kid what a streetcar is.

The big fashion news is that ladies' hats are coming back. A lady used to be defined as a female who wouldn't be caught dead in public without a hat, and preferably she even wore white gloves. When was the last time you saw a woman under 50 in a hat?

THE YOUNG FOLKS today know what a gear shift is on a vehicle, but you'll have to ask around awhile before you find someone who has used a gear shift—on a car.

Fountain pens, gear shifts and radio serials have practically disappeared from the culture, for better or for worse. CBS brought back the radio play with its "Mystery Theater," but most nights WJR is broadcasting a sports event, so you have to wait until 1:07 in the morning. The kids may never know the joy of using their imaginations as they listen to a drama.

Classical music is so nearly obsolete on commercial television that they call it a "Christmas special" whenever it is presented any more.

The old "Lone Ranger" radio program had a long string of classical themes—Liszt's "Les Preludes," Borodin's "Polovtsian Dances" and even a shot of Mendelssohn, not to mention Rossini's "William Tell Overture." A Rimsky-Korsakov theme introduced "The Green Hornet," and a soap opera came on with a theme from Tchaikovsky's "Pathetique" symphony. But you'll have to listen pretty hard to hear a commercial television show with a classical music theme.

THE TOP ROW of the balcony in a movie theater was referred to as "ethnic heaven" or something like that, but it's pretty hard to find a modern movie house in suburbia with a balcony. The Civic in Farmington has one, but I've never seen it open.

Mustache wax made a comeback, and vests never entirely left us, but when is the last time you've bought a pair of trousers with a watch pocket? I have a pair of Levis with a watch pocket, but no pocket watch to put in the watch pocket.

Accounting is so sophisticated nowadays that someone figured out soda fountains are a poor investment for a drug store. Soda fountains had their social uses, and there are one or two still left in these suburbs. But you'll never see a new one built by a businessman who believes in cost-benefit analysis.

Sense And Nonsense

According to figures put out by the Wayne County Sheriff's department, crime in the western regions of the county is on the upswing. Canton Township is one area that has suffered a rise in crime in the last several years.

When a township official was asked about the rise in crime in Canton he responded, "Quite frankly, I'm against it."

READERS FORUM

Limit letters to 300 words.

Editor:

As the elected officers of Crestwood High School in Dearborn Heights, we are relating to you the opinions and feelings that have been communicated to us by a majority of the Crestwood student body.

It is our personally shared opinion that the views of the students have been suppressed by the total news media. We thank those people who were concerned enough to speak out in the form of editorials in support of the students and their right to an education. We now feel that a first-hand editorial on the part of the students is in order.

The majority of Crestwood's student body shares the feeling that they are again being used as pawns in a political game between the board of education and the Michigan Education Association and Crestwood Education Association.

However, we do support the board's decision to fire those teachers who blatantly defied state law, contemptuously disregarded the decisions of a court of the State of Michigan and onenly denied students their constituional right to an education.

Becuase of these actions by members of the CEA before the actual firings and deplorable behavior of the CEA and their supporters since that time, students have no alternative left but to vehemently demand that the former teachers never be allowed to return to a classroom in this district.

Because of the events that have transpired since the beginning of this disastrous school year, the respect needed to create an educational atmosphere conducive to learning in a classroom situation has been irretrivably lost.

We the students urge continued support by the community to insure that the Crestwood board cannot be forced to revoke their decision due to pressure applied by the intolerable actions of the MEA and its various supporters.

The main concern of all should be the quality of education received by students. The schools cannot be allowed to become the battleground of labor and management dissutes.

We urge our state legislators to act in accordance with the request of the people they represent. If they cannot bring about the needed changes in the laws of the state, then they must at the very least insure a stable education to allow our generation the opportunity to be educated and to right these unbelievable wrongs.

MIKE FAYZ, Student Council President, and Student Council Officers, Class of '75, '76 and '77 Crestwood High School Dearborn Heights

UAW, yes; teachers, no??

Editor:

I would like to express my dismay that teachers have had to strike over the right to bargain. This is not to be confused with the stand that many irate parents have taken which expresses dismay over the fact that teachers had the audacity to strike.

Those who adhere to the latter don't seem to be able to understand why teachers weren't in classrooms and on picket lines. After all, there were students who needed to be taught.

Assuming that those people understand something about economics, I am led to wonder if these same people are up in arms when auto workers go out on strikes. After all, there are cars to be built.

Many people don't want to think that teachers are professionals. No one would trust their child's body with a doctor who got his degree out of a cereal box. Does that mean they trust their child's mind with someone who is less than professional?

If a janitor in an auto factory is protected by the right to bargain, shouldn't our teachers deserve the same?

GARY VASILASH, Redford

No threat to white men

Editor:

A short article affirming the job market for '75 grads good in spite of the economic slump ended on a very "down" note. It described hiring programs for women and minorities — especially minorities — as "eroding the position of the white male."

Because some men are seeing that equality is necessary and fair, why disclaim them? Your writer, possibly a white male, should realize that letting a few minority members and women onto the bottom of the ladder will not harm the white males who solidly stand on the rungs the rest of the way up.

Indeed, if they are good, the added stimuli of new competition will make them even better. I look for great things in our nation's future.

SHIRLEY KINSLER, Plymouth

Dog killed in 6 hours

Editor:

I am writing to inform you and the public that our fine Michigan Humane Society is nothing more than a glorified slaughterhouse.

I left my one-year-old German shepherd there Jan. 6 because she had been jumping the fence, and I don't have the facilities to keep her in a pen.

I knew they could find her a home because I recently received over 20 responses to an ad in the paper. I could not give her away through my home because she was an excellent watchdog and would not go with a stranger on her own property, yet out in public anyone could approach her.

When I called Jan. 7 to see if they found her a home, I was told she had been "put to sleep" the day before because they were overcrowded! What kind of an excuse is that?

She was young, healthy, and had all her shots good until 1976. They did not even hold her six hours or offer her to the public. Even the city pound holds dogs one week.

As far as I am concerned, there is nothing humane about the Humane Society.

Indians find their Santa

Editor:

We wish to thank every person in your area who donated things to Hank ("Blackie") Chruscial and his wife Eleanor for distribution to the Indians in northern Michigan.

These toys and clothing went to many children, and it is wonderful to see the faces of these children, who expected little or nothing at Christmas, when they suddenly find there is a Santa, and he is the generous heart of the people in your area.

The foodstuffs all went to our senior citizens on fixed incomes, most barely enough to survive, and suddenly here is a whole large box of groceries to brighten their holidays also.

Thank you again and God bless you.

Viet vet bonus processing to be on 1st-in 1st-out basis

The State Department of Military Affairs is preparing to administer the new Michigan Vietnam Veteran Era Bonus.

The machinery is being set up in the newly created Vietnam Veteran Era Bonus Section, headed by Capt. Michael J. Rice. Headquartered in Lansing, the bonus section, part of the Office of the Adjutant General, will be staffed through the Michigan Deaprtment of Civil Service.

Setting up the system has taken some time and the section to be adequately staffed by early February.

IT WILL BE about four or five weeks after the section begins processing claims that the first eligible veterans will receive payment. This means no payment will be received before March.

Because a backlog of claims is expected to build quickly, the section will send a postcard to veterans and their beneficiaries acknowledging receipt of their claims.

Incoming applications will be stored in a first-in, first-out system.

APPLICATION forms are expected to be available for wide distribution throughout the state by the end of January. Distribution points will be publicized when they are determined.

In addition to filling out the application forms, the veteran must enclose a copy of his report of discharge. After completing the application, it must be notarized.

Requests from out-of-state claimants should be directed to the Vietnam Era Bonus Section, P.O. Box 1500, Lansing 48904.

To be eligible, veterans must have been residents of Michigan for at least six months before entering active military service, and must have been on active duty 190 days or more during the period from Jan. 1, 1961 to Sept. 1, 1973.

COMBAT VETERANS are entitled to receive a $600 cash bonus, and are defined as servicemen or women eligible to wear the Vietnam Service Medal or the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal.

Those whose active duty service did not entitle them to wear the medals are entitled to draw a bonus of $15 for each month of service, up to a maximum of $450.

Beneficiaries of veterans who died of service-connected causes would be eligible for the same cash payments.

The beneficiary application (Form V-2) will not be available for distribution until early spring.

Transit hearing to be in Washtenaw

Last in a series of eight public hearings on the proposed 1990 Transportaion Plan, sponsored by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), will be at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 16 in Ypsilanti Township Hall, 7200 S. Huron River Drive.

Before to that hearing, detailed information on the plan will be available at a transportation display on view at Briarwood Mall Jan. 14 to 16.

A SEMCOG representative will answer questions and pass out maps and brochures detailing the plan from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on those days. The mall is located at I-94 and South State Road in Ann Arbor.

DURING THE public hearing citizens will be able to express views or ask questions on the proposed plan by following these guidelines:

All written statements will be accepted and entered into the record;

Oral summaries of written statements should not exceed three minutes;

Questions should be stated clearly and briefly;

Questions should relate only to the proposed transportation plan.

ANSWERING questions will be a panel including SEMCOG planning and policy persons and representatives of the Ann Arbor - Ypsilanti Urban Area Transportation Study Committee (UATS), the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation and the consulting firm of Barton-Aschman.

Although other hearings were held during September and October last year, this hearing was delayed until completion of the UATS study which will be combined with the SEMCOG proposal for a total proposed transportation plan for the region.

Transcripts from all hearings will be studied by SEMCOG's transportation Transportation Task Force, which could modify the proposed plan based on citizen input.

FROM THERE the proposed plan will go to the SEMCOG Executive Committee for review and comment before going to the General Assembly, a body made up of member local elected officials, for adoption in June this year.

An adopted regional plan, one of the requirements for obtaining funding, will expedite the release of state and federal funds to southeast Michigan communities for construction and development of roads, streets and public transit systems.

SEMCOG, a voluntary association of governmental units in the seven-county region of Southeast Michigan, plans for transportation land use, sewer and water, criminal justice, recreation and open space development.

WE WANT TO SELL CARS. YOU WANT TO SAVE MONEY.

Don't make any deal till you see your Chevrolet Dealer.

No matter what kind of price or sales talk you've been hearing, see your Chevrolet dealer before you buy.

☐ He's anxious to give you his best possible deal. And according to Manufacturers' Suggested Retail Prices, he can begin by offering you the lowest priced car in many model categories, including America's lowest priced wagon (Vega), America's lowest priced mid-size car (Chevelle Malibu Sedan Six), and America's lowest priced full-size car (Bel Air Sedan).

☐ He can also offer a high trade-in on many used cars, so the actual cost of your new Chevrolet might be much lower than you'd expect.

He deals in America's favorite car—Chevrolet—which means you can get traditionally high resale value in a car you'll really like to own. And he has a wide range of models in stock and ready to go, right now, including compact Chevy Novas and economy-plus Chevy Vegas.

NOVA. A proved value in compact cars.

Pick the base Nova, Nova Custom, or luxurious new Nova LN. Whichever you decide on, you get a reliable, roomy, solidly built, easy-to-drive, easy-to-park compact car. There are two standard Nova engines: an economical six-cylinder or 4.3-litre V8. And the '75 Nova is engineered to cost about $300 less in scheduled maintenance than the '74 (in 50,000 miles of driving).

VEGA. Best overall EPA gas mileage of any 4-cylinder American-built car.

Vega gives you economy plus a lot of choices. The Vega Hatchback, America's most popular hatchback, is already priced $85 below its nearest competitor. Other Vega models include America's lowest priced wagon, the Vega Notchback, the Notchback LX and the Vega Estate Wagon. And the '75 Vega is engineered to cost about $240 less in scheduled maintenance than the '74 (in 50,000 miles of driving).

Jinx shattered, 75-69

Bentley cagers pummel Churchill

By TOM DONOGHUE
Sports Editor

The "Churchill jinx" has been broken.

For the first time ever, the Bulldogs of Bentley High knocked that stalwart Churchill Charger off its "horse."

It was Bentley over Churchill, 75-69.

Bentley was 0-4 against Churchill and had fallen into a set routine. Two years ago, Churchill tipped Bentley, 64-63, during the regular season, and then 50-44 in the districts.

Last season, Bentley fell to Churchill, 64-52, and then dropped a 47-45 decision in the districts. The Bentley-Churchill matchup in the districts this time around is an impossiblity as Bentley is in the Southfield District and Churchill in its own.

"We expected a backyard rival type of ball game," commented first year Bentley Coach Larry Jackson whose team is now 6-4. "The game ended up as I expected but I thought it would be a closer battle."

Bentley jumped to a 16-9 lead in the first quarter and took the second, 18-17, to lead at the half, 34-26. The Bulldogs upped it to 54-39 after three quarters and stretched it to an 18 point spread early in the fourth.

Pat Montagano put his full court press to use and the Chargers stormed back with a 30 point explosion in the fourth. Matt Foster pumped in 12 of his 18 points but the closest Churchill could get was at the buzzer, six points away.

Bentley's Jim Rhodes paced all scorers with 24 and the Bulldogs finished 33 of 60 from the field for 55 per cent. Churchill hit on 24 of 56 for 43 per cent.

The Bulldogs travel to Redford Union Friday (Jan. 17) and the Bentley coach still believes his 3-2 Suburban Eight team has a shot at the loop title.

"We are in good shape," he said."Sure Plymouth Salem is the favorite and both themselves and Belleville should take care of unbeaten Dearborn.

"Be have Dearborn twice and Belleville and Salem once - we can still do it."

Churchill is at Plymouth Canton Saturday (Jan. 18) in a clash of the 2-2 clubs in the Western Six. Box score:

BENTLEY (75): Dinsmore, 3–1–2–7; Kegley,2–2–2–6; Miller, 5–1–2–11; Rhodes, 12–0–0–24; Weiss, 8–1–4–17; McChesney, 2–2–3–6; Carlson, 0–1–3–1; Duckworth, 1–1–1–3. TOTALS, 33–9–17–75.

East crushes Borgess

After getting beaten by two of the better suburban area clubs, John Glenn and Garden City West, Billy Joe Young's Garden City East Panthers got back in the groove Tuesday night with a 64-50 non-league win over Bishop Borgess.

After an 8-8 first quarter, East carved out a 26-18 halftime bulge and increased it to 47-35 after three periods before letting the substitutes mop up in 17-15 fourth period fashion.

Probably the most noteworthy item of the game was that Panther center Greg Emery, the 6-foot-3 southpaw, only scored four points.

"Greg played a very good game for us," Young said, "but he just didn't have his usual touch tonight. However, he only played about 18 minutes. After getting into foul trouble early in the second half he didn't play."

For Bishop Borgess, suffering through a tough year, 6-foot-2 guard Gary Mulka rifled the nets with eight field goals for 16 points, the only visitor in double figures. Dave Rzepka had nine and Dave Priebe canned eight.

Neither team shot well from the field. The host squad connected on only 21 out of 50 for 42 per cent. Borgess sank 20 in 66 tries for 30 per cent.

Tomaszewski, in addition to his 14 points, grabbed 13 caroms and Jim Riley pulled down 10 to lead East to a 32-26 rebounding advantage.

Billy Joe Young's team raised its record to 4-5 on the season and now invades Oak Park in a Northwest Suburban game.

"Oak Park can be tough at home," Young pointed out. "Look what they did to John Glenn—took 'em into overtime before Glenn pulled it out.

"We'll have to shoot well and cut our floor mistakes to a minimum if we hope to get past Oak Park," he said.

West Tigers maul Schafer for 9th win, 91-57

By JIM BRADLEY

Garden City West's Tigers made sure Southgate Schafer didn't pull any nonsense against them like it did against Cherry Hill.

Schafer caught the previously unbeaten Tri-River league-leaders by surprise and upset the Bob Fowler-less Spartans last week, 59-55.

West, sporting a better balanced club, clobbered the Vikings Tuesday, 91-57, to erase any Schafer visions of lightning striking twice against league-leaders.

After running to a 19-10 first quarter lead, West saw its margin cut to 21-16 with seven minutes left in the first half. That was as close as the Vikings came after that.

The Tigers, possibly fearing an upset, racked up 27 points in the second stanza for a very comfortable, 46-21, intermission margin. West opened its lead to 66-33 after three quarters and coasted to its fifth win in six Tri-River League games. Eleven West players got in the game and 10 scored.

Randy Shelley rounded out a quartet of West players in double figures with 13, his most productive offensive show of the season with six baskets.

West strolled to the free throw line 34 times and connected on 25, while Schafer trudged to the stripe 30 times and was successful 21 times. The Tigers almost doubled the Vikings in field goals, 33-18.

Southpaw forward Bob Compean, who helped engineer Schafer's upset of Cherry Hill, led three Vikings in double figures with 14 points, 12 in the first half. Bob Casanova scored 10 and Bryan Hughes came off the bench and scored all of his 11 points in the second half, seven coming on free throws.

Tuesday's victory, coupled with Melvindale's one-point victory at Cherry Hill, left West and Melvindale leading the Tri-River League with 5-1 records, a step ahead of 4-2 Cherry Hill.

However, Bob Fowler, who was supposed to be out for the rest of this month with an injured ankle, played two and a half quarters against Melvindale Tuesday and netted 11 points.

It looks like the Tri-River chase will go down to the wire with the three leaders battling it out for the title.

Meanwhile, West probably has a scheduling advantage in the three-way dog fight. Melvindale and Cherry Hill both have to visit G.C. West, which plays five of its next six Tri-River games at home under the friendly "Big Dome."

Southgate, another weaker league team, comes to Tiger country Friday night to test the West Express which has won its last six games and nine of 11 on the season.

Boxscore:

G.C. WEST (91) - Niles, 7, 6-9, 20; Susko, 8, 3-4, 19; Hutnik, 4, 8-9, 16; Gooch, 1, 0-0, 2; Chavis, 0, 3-4, 3; Shelley, 6, 1-2, 13; Poole, 0, 0-0, 0; Carr, 2, 2-2, 6; Bradley, 2, 0-0, 4; Pressey, 1, 0-2, 2; Brown, 2, 2-2, 6. Totals, 33, 25-34, 91.

SCHAFER (57) - Sbomsky, 1, 0-0, 2; Casanova, 3, 4-4, 10; Compean, 4, 6-9, 14; Runyan, 2, 0-0, 4; Riggle, 1, 0-0, 2; Darin, 2, 2-6, 6; Hughes, 2, 7-9, 11; Stockton, 3, 1-1, 7, Branham, 0, 1-2, 1. Totals: 18, 21-30, 57.

Clarenceville bumps South Lyon, 53-46

With nine games still remaining on the schedule, Wolf, in only his second season, has already bettered his "rookie showing."

Clarenceville won only one game last season under Wolf in 20 attempts and was outscored an average of 66-43 per contest.

Halfway into his second year, Wolf bettered the first year mark over the team that knocked Clarenceville out of the districts back in March, 62-55.

"The kids played a good game," commented Wolf whose now 2-8 Trojans take on Milford Friday (Jan. 17), away."It wasn't our best showing yet but at least we didn't blow our cool in the fourth quarter."

The seven point victory wasn't as easy as seven points might sound. In fact, with just 49 seconds remaining, the Trojans were holding on to a slim 47-46 margin.

South Lyon jumped off to a first quarter, 14-12 lead. The Trojans stormed back in the second, 19-8, to carry a 31-22 advantage into the locker room at the half.

Clarenceville hit seven of 11 from the floor in the second with 5-foot-9 senior guard Larry Kaplan pumping in seven points.

Dino Mastropietro then popped in two from the charity line for Clarenceville. South Lyon missed on its attempt, George Scholes hauled in the rebound for Clarenceville, passed to Jordan Hecker who pumped in a 10 foot jump shot and with 10 seconds left, the Trojan margin was up to 51-46.

Chris Curtis hit a layup at the buzzer for Clarenceville and the Trojans had already bettered their 1973-74 mark of 1-19.

Clarenceville finished 20 of 55 from the field for 38 per cent, Scholes high man with 20 points. South Lyon hit on 17 of 39 for 41 per cent. Box score:

Annapolis routs Canton, 71-55

"Fourth quarter blues" sang out defeat for Casey Cavell's Plymouth Canton Chiefs.

After trailing by just two points heading into the final eight minutes, 43-41, Canton fell apart and Dearborn Heights Annapolis romped off to a 71-55 non-league cage win.

"Annapolis simply blew us off the floor inthe fourth quarter," commented Cavell whose now 5-5 Canton squad hosts Livonia Churchill Saturday (Jan. 18).

Annapolis took off to a 17-11 first quarter edge and maintained that spread at the half, 31-25. Canton won the third quarter to close it to 43-41 — one quarter remaining.

Canton could only come up with a five for 14 showing from the floor in the fourth and Annapolis won the eight minute span, 28-14.

"Our team work was very poor," added Cavell. "We weren't sharp at anything."

7th win for Spartans

Stevenson tops Franklin, 66-51

City rivalry kept the going close for three quarters but in the final eight minutes, the better club did its thing.

George VanWagoner's Stevenson Spartans upped their season mark to 7-4 in a 66-51 dumping of Franklin.

It was loss No. 6 for Franklin in a 2-6 season, a step back from the past three year marks of 22-4, 15-9 and 12-6.

"The city rivalry kept the game touch and go for awhile," commented VanWagoner. "Our experience came to life in the end."

Stevenson got off to a 17-7 lead in the first, hitting eight of 13 from the floor. John Bowlby scored seven and Dave Haberman six of his game high 21.

The halftime score showed Stevenson on top, 37-23. Franklin fought back to win the third stanza, 14-8, and slice it to 45-37 with eight minutes remaining.

Stevenson's meager eight point output in the third saw the squad connect on just one of seven from the floor. The Spartans bounced back to take the fourth, 21-14, and finish 21 of 48 from the floor for 44 per cent.

Franklin hit on 20 of 44 for 45 per cent.

"Stevenson came out firing and kept up the pace," was Franklin Coach Bob Visser's comment. "But our kids never gave up.

"We are going to come out like a bear Friday against North Farmington," added Visser. "It won't be anything like against Stevenson.

"Every game in the Northwest in a must for us now," he added whose Patriots stand at 2-2 in the loop. "It is not impossible for us to defend the championship."

Westland John Glenn is on top of the Northwest at 4-0, Garden City East is second at 3-1 and Franklin and Oak Park third at 2-2.

Then comes Thurston at 1-3 and North Farmington at 0-4.

His championship in the 155 pound class of the Schoolcraft Invitational wrestling tournament last weekend was the fourth he's captured this year. Earlier this season he won the Oakland County, the Western Wayne and the Quad Cities tournaments.

"He's a once in a lifetime kid," said Farmington Harrison coach Bill Pratt.

The senior certainly has the dedication seen once in a lifetime. He runs five miles every morning, does 50 pull ups and 50 chin ups and two sets of 200 pushups all before school. After school he practices for two hours with the team and works out again each night.

"He's the first kid I've ever had to work like that," said Cook.

He beat an all-America wrestler with a 90-0 high school record last August at the AAU championships in Iowa and won the U.S. Federation national championship last March in Colorado. After going undefeated on a wrestling tour of Japan, last summer he may tour Bulgaria this summer.

"He may well be the best high school wrestler in the country," says Dean Shipman, the director of the Schoolcraft tournament.

CHURELLA, WHO is 17-0 this year with 15 pins, led Farmington to a ninth place finish at the 34-school Invitational. Five Falcons placed as the team collected 56 points. Pat Rence finished fourth at 105 and Earl Hall took fifth at 126.

"Churella was the class of the tournament," said North Farmington coach Jim O'leary, whose team finished 13th with 30½ points. Raider Bill Lough placed third at 187.

Harrison High, which tied Clarenceville with 13 points, had one wrestler place. Sophomore Keven Johns took sixth place at 126.

Southfield-Lathrup High tied for 15th with Thurston, totaling 28 points. Tim Printz lost in overtime to Sid Jackson, 1-0, for the heavyweight championship. Dave Goforth placed fifth at 147.

"I think it was a much better tournament this year," said Schoolcraft coach Dean Shipman. "We try to upgrade it every year and we had a lot of kids with records like 20-0 there. Quite a few of these kids will finish high in the state finals. We had eight new schools this year and seven finished in the top 20."

"This is the biggest tournament in Michigan and wrestling is growing," he said. "We had 2,000 people there for the finals.

Rivalry reunited

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

On and on it goes and when it stops nobody knows. That appears to be the story of the Northville Downs suit against Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley over the lack of summer racing dates for the first time since the suburban half-mile track opened in 1944.

The case went before Circuit Court Judge Thomas Foley two weeks ago and after listening to preliminary arguments and receiving briefs from the attorneys, he delayed action until Monday, Jan. 13.

Come last Monday and Judge Foley immediately dismissed the request of Shirley's attorneys for a dismissal and said there was sufficient merit for a full hearing of the case on Monday, Jan. 20 at 9 a.m.

So now it appears as if showdown day will be next Monday when Judge Foley will listen to a full hearing of the case. It could go far in deciding whether the racing commissioner has the powers of a czar, as most feel after reading the racing act that set up the racing commission, or whether he can act in a capricious manner as charged in Northville Downs Executive Director John Carlo's suit.

It has been a long time coming and by that we mean a suit challenging the power of the racing commissioner. It seems strange that it should come over dates. But then when one keeps giving one track the short end of the stick, as seems the story in this instance, sometimes that stick may become a dangerous bludgeon.

For those reading of the case for the first time. Carlo is challenging the commissioner's right to take away from his track all of its summer dates. Northville Downs has had summer racing since it started in 1944 and Carlo feels it should have in 1975. The commissioner says "no."

IRVING "BALDY" UTTER, veteran Fowlerville driver-trainer, was re-elected to District 2 board of the United States Trotting Association at the annual meeting of the Michigan Harness Horsemen's Association last weekend in Lansing.

"Baldy" was opposed by Bob Huff, of Shiawassee Farms in Durand, and won rather handily.

Probably there was more interest in the selection of directors to the MHHA than to any other posts. For those residing in the vicinity of Detroit, Gerald Banfield and Frank Alexander were named to the board, succeeding Gran Dale and Carl Allen.

John Carlo, executive director of Northville Downs and one of the directors of the Northville Fair, was a successful bidder for one of the richest Michigan's futurities in bidding at the annual banquet of the MHHA last Saturday.

Carlo won the $100,000 added Wolverine Futurity on his bid of $3,400, the highest bid for the futurity in several years. He plans to hold the event on one of the afternoons of the Northville Fair which is held the last week in July.

The Wolverine Futurity includes races for the state's top three-year-old filly and stud and gelding pacers and the three-year-old filly and stud and gelding trotters.

It will bring county fair racing back to the area and give folks a chance to see the best in action in an all-afternoon series of eliminations and then the championships in the four divisions.

CARLO, ALWAYS A prime booster of the colt stakes programs, is one of the biggest boosters of the Northville Fair and hopes eventually to bring it back to the prominence it held years ago when it was tagged the Wayne County Fair at Northville.

There isn't any question bringing the Futurity to Northville will be a giant step forward for the fair and also for harness racing. The Futurity will be held in the afternoon with no wagering.

If there is any question in the minds of harness racing fans about which is the best pacer racing at Northville Downs, it was erased Saturday when Bob Kalish's Spanish Mac came from fourth in the final quarter to take his third straight open victory.

Once again Spanish Mac went to the post as the second choice with Hasty Ed the odds-on favorite. It appeared for a time as if Hasty Ed would win it all rather handily when he moved from sixth and last to first on the first lap.

But then the extreme cold (it must have had a chill factor of around 15 below on the track) caught up with Hasty Ed on the backstretch and he wilted like a bagpipe without wind to end up a dismal sixth.

Meanwhile, Driver Tom Merriman had Spanish Mac flying on the final curve and he finally caught and passed the leading Consuelo in the stretch for a victory in 2:09.1. Spanish Mac went postward at 3-1 odds and paid $8.20...which has to be some kind of a record for a horse that has done nothing but beat the same horses three times in a row.

FROM MEMBERS of the negotiating team for the mutuel clerks union comes word that talks with management of the Detroit Racing Association will probably start this week.

Dick Wilson, vice president and general manager of the DRA, was due in town earlier in the week.

Contrary to earlier rumors that the track might not open on Feb. 21 as scheduled if negotiations were still under way, a union spokesman pointed out that clerks are working at Northville Downs without a contract and could do the same at the DRC.

"In fact I can't remember a time since we began negotiations back in the mid-50s when the tracks opened with a contract," he said. "The contract is always retroactive and the members appear happy with the situation."

There is hope the union and track will be able to reach an agreement in advance of the opening since, generally speaking, it is the contract reached with the first track which tends to set a pattern of settlement for all of the others.

In this time of inflation, labor layoffs and the like, it is the hope of everyone that negotiations go smoothly this time.

WASHDAY BLUES are pretty much a thing of the past for the American housewife. In the far East, laundry is left on bamboo poles or roofs for days at a time. When you need a clean suit you simply take one off your roof.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

We're getting letters asking us why it is that the large "hamburger" onions are not keeping well.

They like a cool basement or garage for best keeping. Here's a good way to keep onions: use old hose or panty hose. Put in one onion and then tie a knot, then put in another onion, tie a knot, repeat. Hang in a cool place.

When you need an onion, just cut below the knot and the others will still be intact. Otherwise you can put onions in slatted crates or coarse mesh bags and stored in a dry, dark storage at around 40 degrees for the winter months.

NOW THAT the seed catalogs have started to roll in keep your eye on a new watermelon called Yellow Baby from China. Last fall we tasted it and think it should be a worth while addition for your garden in '75.

Yellow Baby is a cross between an American female parent (New Hampshire midget) and a Chinese male parent. This new All-American winner is early to ripen (70 days), is productive, and has fewer seeds than the red varieties of "ice-box" melons.

Seed can be started indoors and transplanted out in warm weather, or seed can be planted directly in the garden and covered with "hot caps."

Cool weather is the secret of good results with cauliflower.

NEXT TO the African Violet, the Gloxinia is America's most popular house plant. You can start them from seed now and get a flowering plant within six months or so.

They can also be started by tubers now and have blooms within two or three months. Or you can take a leaf cutting and root it in plan tap water, vermiculite or perlite. A leaf cutting will form roots and a tiny tuber before it sends up a new plant.

When the plantlet is about two inches high it can be potted up in a mixture of 1 part each of sand, peat and loam. Gloxinias like a day temperature of 68 to 72 degrees and a night temperature of 62 to 65 degrees. They also like a bright window, but not direct sun.

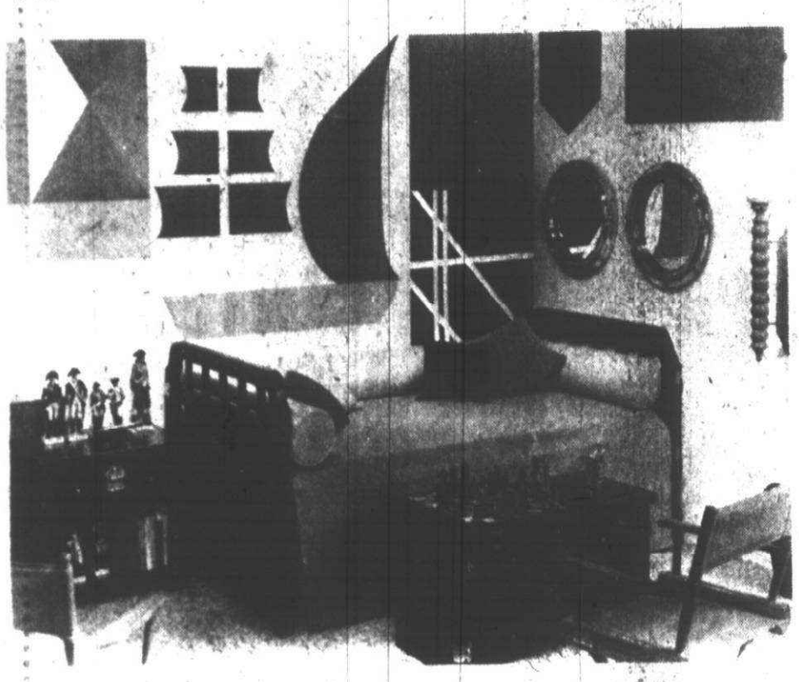
JANUARY and August are the traditional months for best buys in furniture. When shopping for children's furniture, pay special attention to practical, durable and carefree aspects. Most children's table, chest and desk tops are plastic laminated to withstand wear and tear. The son and daughter groupings are from Stanley Furniture Co.



Louvred doors end institutional look

The average apartment dweller can face a real challenge when it comes to interior decorating.

With the walls and ceilings of so many apartments painted white or off-white, it's difficult to avoid the institutional look. And ordinary flush doors, painted to match the colors of the walls and ceilings, just add to the monotony.

A CURE for the lackluster door syndrome is as near as the local building supply dealer. There you can select louvered doors in various sizes, either fully louvered or with louvers at the top half and panels in the lower half.

Factory-built louver doors of ponderosa pine for example, give an apartment the custom look without custom prices. They can be painted to contrast with wall colors or stained to bring out the natural warm grain.

Because these doors allow air to circulate between the louvers, they are ideal for closets. The circulating air eliminates mildew and keeps clothes fresh smelling.

LOUVER DOORS of ponderosa pine also make excellent room dividers—either free standing or, for added stability, attached to a wall.

Should you decide to dress up your apartment with louver doors, it's a good idea to put the flush doors in storage and have them rehung should you decide to move.

Otherwise you may have to pay for the replacements when your lease expires and you leave the old apartment.

Plant of the week

AECHMEA

Aechmea, sometimes called the urn plant, is characterized by its stiff, thick leaves forming a funnel-shaped rosette. It is a member of the Bromelaid family which includes the pineapple.

The leaves are richly colored and patterned, with deep cups to hold water.

A cluster of small flowers is perched well above the foliage on a thin stalk. The flowers rarely open but have richly colored bracts and long-lasting clusters of berries.

Michigan State University horticulturists suggest the following conditions for best growth:

SOIL should contain equal parts fir bark, peat moss and perlite, and lumps of charcoal or broken pot for drainage.

WATER sparingly during the rest periods or when the temperature drops. Keep the soil moist, because it is difficult to moisten after it has dried; but be careful that it is not constantly wet. Spray or dust the leaves occasionally to remove any dust. The center of the plant will hold water and should be filled all the time.

TEMPERATURES should be warm—anywhere from 62 to 85 degrees F.

LIGHT—Aechmeas prefer good light—a place near an east window. The sun will bring out the vibrant colors in the foliage. They are, however, very tolerant and will grow in a north window or any shaded area in the home.

PROPAGATION is by cuttings or suckers.

Antique furniture suffers from dry air

When your beautiful Queen Anne desk or colonial rocking chair was made, the craftsmen wouldn't have dreamed of the environment as it is today.

Modern methods of central heating create an atmosphere drier than a desert—as low as 10 per cent relative humidity as opposed to the desirable level of at least 30 per cent.

What happens? The dryness in the air captures moisture from your furnishings, causing glue to dry out, joints to separate, and cracks to appear.

Chair rungs become loose. Plaster dries out and possibly cracks. Floorboards may shrink and separate.

THE GREAT GATE OF KIEV-Hartmann picture described by Moussorgsky

The story-telling "Pictures at an Exhibition," admired by music lovers of all ages, had two anniversaries in the last year, notes Plymouth Symphony Conductor Wayne Dunlap.

Dunlap will conduct the orchestral version as the concluding work of the symphony's family concert Sunday, Jan. 26 at 4 p.m in Plymouth-Salem High School, Joy west of Canton Center Road.

In 1874, composer Modeste Moussorgsky attended an art exhibit of works by his late friend, Victor Hartmann. Moussorgsky wrote piano works with the same titles as Hartmann's paintings—"The Old Castle," "The Great Gate at Kiev," "Ballet of the Unhatched Chicks," all tied together by the stirring "Promenade" theme.

Fifty years later, in 1924, the work, as orchestrated by Maurice Ravel, was first performed in the United States by the Boston Symphony.

"Moussorgsky's musical version of the pictures has attained far more enduring fame than Hartmann's original paintings Dunlap points out.

Theme of the first part of the program will be trains, said Dunlap, who has selected all story-telling works for the annual "family concert."

On the program are Johann Strauss' "Pleasure Train Polka," Villa-Lobos' "The Little Train of the Brazilian Countryman" and Arthur Honegger's "Pacific 231."

Main feature of the program will be "Creatures and Colors," six songs written in 1963 for the Plymouth Symphony by Lee Eitzen, a former member of the orchestra. Singing will be the East Middle School Chorus, directed by William Grimmer.

Dunlap notes that Strauss was nearly as famed for his polkas as he was for being king of the Viennese waltz. Villa-Lobos' work was based on Brazilian folk legends, and his "Litlte Train" is a Toonerville trolley-type of vehicle.

"Honnegger had a passion for trains," said Dunlap. "'Pacifac 231' is a portrait of a huge powerful, fast locomotive as it gathers steam and races on. It's dissonant, charging music." This, too was written in 1924.

Tickets at $3 for adults and $1.50 for senior citizens will be available at the door. There is no charge for K-12 students.

Senior citizens will be given free bus rides from the Tonquish Creek Manor in Plymouth beginning 45 minutes beQore concert-time. Free babysitting by qualified girl scouts will be provided.

Theater offers open house

The Plymouth Theater Guild will hold an open house "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Community Theater But Didn't Know Who To Ask," Tuesday, Jan. 21 at 7:30 p.m. in Plymouth Central School Auditorium, corner of Main and Church Streets.

All phases of theater will be discussed. Displays on make-up, publicity, set design and others will be available. The Guild will present excerpts from its past productions.

Refreshments will be served. The public is invited.

Middle Eastern night at Schoolcraft, Jan. 18

The Schoolcraft College Organization of Arab students will sponsor a Middle Eastern night, with an ethnic dinner, music and entertainment, Saturday, Jan. 18 in the Waterman campus center, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia.

Robert Breithaupt director of Schoolcraft's culinary arts department will prepare a dinner of shish-ka-bob, rice and meat, tabulah (salad) and baklava (thin layers of pastry with honey).

The Behu Brothers Orchestra will provide music, and there will be a floor show featuring belly dancers.

Tickets at $5 per person are available in the Waterman cafeteria Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Beer will be available at $1.35 per pitcher.

Jazz ensemble at UM-D

The Matt Michaels Jazz Ensemble will appear in concert Monday, Jan. 20 at 8 p.m. in the University of Michigan-Dearborn's Fair Lane Center, 4901 Evergreen Road.

Highlights of the five-man ensemble's program include Vivaldi's concerto for violin (with improvisations), improvisations on works by Bach, and original jazz compositions. Several arrangements feature a trio composed of Michaels on piano, Jack Brokenshaw on vibes and Don Palmer on "electronic" violin.

Area students in WSU play

Students from Livonia, Garden City and Farmington Hills will be featured in Wayne State University's Bonstelle Theater production "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

Dale Wasserman's adaptation of Ken Kesey's novel will open Friday, Jan. 17 at 8:30 p.m. Additional evening performances are Saturday, Jan. 18 and Jan. 24-55 at 8:30. Sunday matinees are scheduled Jan. 19 and 26 at 2:30 p.m.

The play is a microscosm of society in the 1960s. It is the story of a rebel who has feigned insanity to get from a penal farm into a mental institution. He rallies other patients around him and challenges the dictatorship of the head nurse.

The result is an all-out conflict that combines comedy and melodrama.

Dancers experience total commitment

By SUE ROSIEK

Dancers are a devoted lot. They spend hours bending, stretching—training their young elastic limbs to accept the strenuous, yet graceful maneuvers of the ballet.

The future breed of Fonteyns spent hours warming-up before turning to the pirouettes, arabesques and allegro steps.

"WARM-UP exercises are a must," says Mrs. Evelyn Kreason, artistic director of the ballet. "Every exercise is designed to condition a different part of the body. Physical stamina is important because the ballet is physically demanding."

"Most dancers reach their peak at about 30 then turn to teaching or another aspect of dance. Because of the physical strain the emphasis is on youth, but many well-known dancers have continued to dance well past 30."

The Michigan Ballet Theater, headquartered in Farmington Hills, has members ranging in age from 13 to 20. Most started dancing at about six or seven.

"Youngsters are natural mimics," says Mrs. Kreason. "It's easier to get a young child to follow dance steps because they are less inhibited. The older a dancer gets the more afraid she is of making a mistake."

JAN SORAH, 13, of Livonia has been dancing for the past six years. The daughter of retired Air Force Major Allen Sorah, Jan has traveled with artists in various parts of the country and the world. She studied in the Philippines and Georgia. She joined the Michigan Ballet Theater two years ago, shortly after her family moved to Livonia.

"She practices about six hours a week," says Mrs. Sorah, "And always under an instructor's supervision. "Of course summer vacation and school holidays are entirely devoted to various dance workshops and lessons."

Jan Eathorne, 18, and Karen Zienba, 17, of Farmington Hills are among the six dancers participating in festival competition. Both have studied ballet for the last 10 years.

The Michigan Ballet was recently awarded a $7,000 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, which will be used to sponsor ballet workshops over the Easter holiday. The group also is planning an outdoor performance scheduled in late spring, says Mrs. Kreason.

BY SHERRY KAHAN

Editor Tim Richard would call executive editor R.T. Thompson and shout, "Hold the presses!

Thompson would quickly send out an order to hold said presses, while at the same time leaning against his rolltop desk. Inside he has trapped members of the negotiating teams of the Garden City school board and teacher union.

Technical changes have considerably cut into the impressive cliches once bellowed by newspaper people. In community journalism, the presses are held about once a decade.

But all this should not stand in the way of anyone's enjoyment of the current re-make of this popular newspaper yarn. Directed by Billy Wilder at his customary pace, the film may sound a trifle dated but it is never dull and stands up very well.

Besides, it's fun to see how things were done then, see the 1929telephones, cars and spitoons, and view an industry that just couldn't stand it when a star reporter decided to abandon it for a wife and regular hours.

BUT WITH those hungry presses waiting there is little lingering over memorabilia for its own sake, and we are presented with a plot as up to date as yesterday's Washington Post.

A mouse of a radical is about to be hung for slaying a policeman. To save the country from the onslaught of Bolshevism, and incidentallyto get reelected, the mayor and police chief of Chicago arrange a communications gap as wide as Grand Canyon.

They attempt to conceal a reprive from the governor which will therefore cause the an innocent man to twist slowly in the wind.

But the mouse escapes, as as mice will, hides in a rolltop desk in the newsroom in the Criminal Courts Building.

Knowing he is there, Jack Lemmon as the star reporter, Hildy Johnson, has the story of a lifetime, the story for which they keep tearing up the front page.

HIS MANAGING editor, played by Walter Matthau, is the kind of man who would drive over his grandmother not only for a big story but for an engagement announcement as well.

The newsmen smoking, drinking and playing cards in the newsroom are a tough bunch, and think nothing of using their ability with words to drive to the wall a spunky prostitute friend of the radical.

This woman is played by Carol Burnett with all the emotional stops pulled out. The jokes are frequent and generally funny and the language is probably a lot more earthy than dared in the original play, but not anything that would upset too much in this expletive-deleted age.

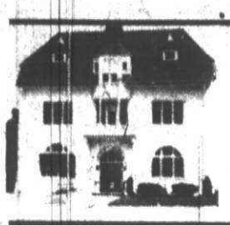
Recall won by 3-2 margin



PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

Part III

At the height of the Cheek-Sackett controversy, in the summer of 1949, attorney Perry Richwine, who was to become mayor after the recall, proposed that the contending factions agree to arbitrate their differences.

In a letter to the "Plymouth Mail" on June 30, Richwine suggested the composition of an arbitration panel consisting of two from each side and a fifth appointed by the four. By this time neither side was prepared to compromise, and Richwine's proposal fell on deaf ears.

The clergy in the city also tried, without success, to pour oil on the troubled waters. Henry Walch, the pastor at the Presbyterian Church, deplored from the pulpit the controversy which pitted brother against brother.He urged the contestants to live and let live.

Mayor Hartmann, who had been appointed to the commission in March 1948, had been returned to office without opposition in the March 1949 election. In April he had been named mayor, the nomination being made by Commissioner Frank Henderson, whom Hartmann succeeded. An official of the Sinclair Refining Company, Hartrmann had been a resident of the city since 1936.

Just prior to the recall, Hartmann issued a statement to the "Mail" in which he said, "I was elected...to conduct government on efficient lines, not sentiment." He said the charges against the four commissioners were unfounded and predicted on petty personal prejudice.

Henderson, a respected industrialist in the city for many years, told the paper that "when mayor, I recognized Sackett's incapabilities as a police chief."

James Latture, a teacher, said the charges against the commissioners were only a pretense to get at the city manager "who has done a good job." On July 14, the "Mail" reported that slightly more than 800, about ¼ of the city's registered voters, had signed the recall petition. Only 625 names were needed.

On July 28, the "Mail" reported that the commission had decided to submit the question of recall to the voters, instead of going to court to determine whether the charges against them were substantial enough to warrant election. In the light of what happened this move was apparently ill advised. At this stage, however, the four commissioners were confident that they would be vindicated at the polls.

The antagonism which had developed between the four named in the recall and the one who was not, Mrs. Ruth Huston Whipple, was apparent in a statement the four made on Aug. 4 in which they referred to their occupations. Two of the commissioners were employed in Detroit, they said, one was a teacher and the fourth was in business in Plymouth. The fifth commisioner,the statement continued, "professes to be a housewife."

On Sept. 1, the commissioners invited residents to a meeting in the high school at which the officials answered questions. On the same day about 200 were at a similar meeting sponsored by the Citizen's League. The ratio of attendance foreshadowed what was to come.

On Sept.7, 1949, after three months of bitter wrangling, 2,236 of Plymouth's 3,400 voters went to the polls, the greatest number for a special election, up to that time, in the history of the city.

On that day the mayor and three other commissioners were voted out of office by a margin of 3-2. All that was required for ouster was a simple majority of those who cast ballots.

At a special meeting of the outgoing commission on Sept. 8, City Manager Cheek read letters of resignation from Health Officer Dr. Harold Brisbois and City Attorney Claude Buzzard. The "Detroit Times," on Sept. 9, attributed the resignations to "disgust on their part with the turbulent situation stirred up by the election."

Cheek also submitted his own resignation as city manager and city clerk. Mrs. Whipple moved that Cheek's resignation be accepted, but Goddard and Latture, the only other commissioners present at the meeting, voted to place the resignation on file until the new commission took over.

They were aware that if Cheek's resignation were immediately accepted the City would be without a head until the changeover took place.

Commissioner Goddard asked Commissioner Whipple if she intended to hold to her public announcement that she would resign if the recall vote was successful. Mrs. Whipple said the matter was not one for the outgoing commission to consider.

Kenneth Gust, leader of the Citizen's League, told the "Plymouth Mail"that the League was sending to Gov. G. Mennen Williams a slate of candidates to fill the four vacancies.

On Sept. 10, Governor Williams announced that he had appointed four temporary city commissioners: Dr. Luther Peck, Mrs. Nell T. Curry, George M. Chute, and Dr. S.N. Thams, all of whom had been suggested by the League.

The temporary commission immediately accepted the resignation of Harold Cheek, and appointed Albert Glassford as acting city manager. Lee Sackett was returned to duty as police chief. George Chute was named acting mayor. The date for electing a permanent commission was set for Oct. 17.

(Part IV will conclude the story of the Recall).

WARRANTY

Everyone pays for service but who profits?

By RICHARD GOLD

Who pays for warranty work on a new automobile? This question is not as simple as it may seem, because it is not always clear who is footing the bill. It might be the factory, the consumer, the mechanic or the dealer.

One thing is clear, however, the financial incentive for the dealer and mechanic to do retail repair is much greater than the incentive for warranty work. Bill Brown Sr., of Bill Brown Ford in Lansing says, "There's no question that we make more money in retail repair on a per capita basis. We're lucky to make any profit on warranty repairs, and I've been a dealer for 34 years. The factory probably approves work for me that they wouldn't for other dealers."

Donald Randall, author of "The Great American Automobile Repair Robbery, A Ten Billion National Swindle and What You Can Do About It" is more emphatic about the relationship between the factory and the dealer, the mechanic and the consumer.

"In effect the retail customer, the dealer and the mechanic subsidize warranty work—the retail customer by paying more than the manufacturer for the same repair, the dealer by taking in less income for the same job and the mechanic by earning fewer wages for warranty work than for retail work," he writes.

WHEN A NEW CAR owner brings his auto in for warranty repair work, the dealer does the work and bills the factory. The rates for labor and parts are established by the manufacturer and must be accepted by the franchised dealer. According to Randall and many car dealers, the rebate from the factory is inadequate and this is where the problem begins. The dealer either loses money or makes at best a "marginal profit."

The mechanic at a dealership is paid according to a flat rate manual. The manual designates the number of hours a job should take and the mechanic is paid accordingly, regardless of the number of hours it actually takes him. But the warranty manual is established by the manufacturer, while retail work is done according to another manual, usually "The Chilton Auto Repair Manual" or "The Motor's Auto Repair Guide." However, the flat rate guide for warranty work allows fewer hours than the manual for comparable retail repair work.

As a result the mechanic and the dealer get less money on warranty labor than on comparable retail repair. (The dealer and the mechanic split the labor fee on 50-50 basis.)

SIMILARLY, profit on parts for warranty work is reduced by the factory. The factory pays the dealer cost plus 20 to 25 per cent on parts, and many dealers argue that this does not allow them any profit. On retail work, the dealer often makes more than 40 per cent on parts.

In 1968, the National Automobile Dealers' Association hired an independent consulting firm to find out if they were losing money on warranties. According to Randall, "The study showed that dealers were losing $3.45 per warranty claim on warranty-related clerical and administrative costs alone."

Jim North of North Brother's Ford Inc. in Westland concurs. "There's a lot of special work that goes on in a warranty repair. There's extra clerical work and we aren't compensated for that."

The survey also indicated dealers were often losing money on labor and barely breaking even on parts. The Ford Dealers' Association, a dissident group of Ford dealers is fighting the warranty rebate provisions. One member, Ed Mullane, a dealer for 20 years, claims he is losing money on both parts and labor.

"We get cost plus 25 per cent on parts, and the consultant we hired said that in 1969 we needed 33 per cent just to break even. Now we need 40 per cent over cost if we aren't going to lose any money on the deal. Since the factory doesn't pay us enough, our customers and our mechanics end up subsidizing the manufacturer on warranty work."

ONE LOCAL Ford dealer, who asked to remain unidentified, agreed, "I'm doing all right if I'm breaking even."

Lou La Riche, of Lou La Riche Chevrolet in Plymouth, explains, "We break even in warranty and we make it up in retail. What we need is for the factory to turn out better cars. The people just don't have pride in their jobs any more." He also says the brunt of any money loss usually falls on the mechanic. "There should be more latitude in the manual so our people can do all right on warranty work."

Bob Cann, of Fiesta AMC and Jeep in Plymouth, views the problem in a different light. "What we have to do is get rid of the gray areas in the warranty. There are two coverages in most warranties, one involves a 90-day adjustment period, and the other coverage is for 12 months and 12,000 miles. If an adjustment problem comes up in between 90 days and 12 months there's a hassle between the dealer, the buyer and the factory. With our new Buyer Protection Plan we avoid this issue."

Cann also explains that the dealer has to give a "discount" to the factory on warranty parts. "They're our biggest customer, and we do the same for the cars we sell to the state. It's a volume discount."

MOST DEALERS agree warranty work is the largest single item keeping the shops busy. Usually 40 per cent of the repair work is warranty and 60 per cent is retail.

Dick Green, of Dick Green Plymouth in Detroit says his shop is able to run because of warranty work. "This way, I can keep my men busy, otherwise business would be up and down, and I'd either have men sitting around or I'd have to hire more when it got too busy, it stabilizes the back shop."

Green is satisfied with his factory arrangement. "They give you what they can. A lot of the time it's the dealer's fault, he's trying to cheat the factory. We have to have a good team effort to give the customer service, we have to work together. Of course though, I'd like to control the rates on warranty work, but we aren't losing money."

IF THERE IS a rift between the dealer and the factory, the implications are serious for the car buyer.

Randall suggests two major problems:

- When it is possible, the dealer will not do the warranty work, or he will make it a last priority item because the financial incentive is to do other kinds of work first.
- When the car is brought in for warranty work, the dealer or the mechanic may seek out other repairs on the vehicle that are not covered by the warranty to minimize losses on warranty work.

Other problems exist that make it difficult for the consumer to get a decent shake on warranty work. Often, Randall says, dealers do not get paid for road tests on a new car brought in for warranty repair, and the incentive for the mechanic to do a complete check up on the vehicle is diminished. Also, dealers do not get reimbursed for some repairs when the factory charges the car owner with "excessive abuse." Finally the factory may require "prior approval" on certain kinds of work done under the warranty, forcing the consumer to wait up to "10 days" for work that needs immediate attention.

Jim North says, however, that some delays are not the result of prior approval, but simply because the factory doesn't have the part.

BUT IF the consumer is getting poor service, his problem is even more insulting because, in essence, the warranty work has been paid for in the purchase price of the car.

Tom Houston, Chrysler spokesman says, "Obviously the costs of doing warranty work are fully transferred to the consumer when he buys the car. It's part of the purchase price."

B. F. "Moon" Mullins, another Chrysler official explains that the cost of warranty work is included in a category called "the cost of doing business."

But the price of an automobile is established by two factors, all the costs of producing it and what the competition is charging. Basically, the costs are added together, including the cost of doing business, and a desired profit percentage is tacked on.

This would suggest, in fact, that a profit is being made on the warranty costs, because a profit margin is computed on and added to the entire cost of production, and part of the entire cost is the warranty cost.

THE COST of the warranty in the purchase price of a new car is closely guarded information. Representatives of all four domestic manufacturers will not even divulge "ball park" figures. They claim it would "give up their competitive position."

But it is clear that the costs of warranty are closely monitored and the manufacturers know precisely which items constantly need attention, and what design failures are causing them the most problems.

"We try to determine what the warranty cost will be before we sell the car, but the vehicles are priced before the information is in," says Bud McMullen, a General Motors representative.

Larry Knox, a consultant who works for Cummunico, has been intimately involved with all four manufacturers. He suggests warranty costs are between $25 and $50 a car. "They watch for a pattern of repairs over a number of years, and they have the cost of the warranty nailed down to three decimal points," he says.

However, one American Motors official, who preferred to remain anonymous, suggests the cost per car is "more like $100. This amount is included in the purchase price of each car."

But, he also adds, "It depends on the comprehensiveness of your plan and the company. The more cars you sell, the less the cost is going to be for each car. It's a question of size and volume of the company."

THE BEST indication of the cost of warranties is the second year option AMC offers. It has been selling for $99.95. George Brown, director of the AMC service department, says the company is lucky to break even on this option.

He also states that most warranty work on a car is done in the first six months of ownership. "Our records indicate that the most trouble and the most adjustments made to a new car occur within six months after the car is sold. Usually any problem will appear in the first six months and the owner will notice it and bring it right in."

Brown's statements would imply that the second year of warranty is cheaper than the first, and this would place the cost of warranty minimally at $100 per car.

Brown also states a second reason for warranties. "They are more than a protective device for the owner, they are a marketing tool for the company."

"Our sales have increased 50 per cent since we instituted the 'buyer protection plan' two years ago. It aroused product interest and helped us sell over 100,000 more cars in each of the last two years," says Brown.

IN FACT, many of the changes that have occured in warranty policies can be interpreted in terms of marketing.

Prior to the early '60s most warranties were for 90 days or 4,000 miles. Then Chrysler introduced a 12 month-12,000 mile warranty and followed with a five year-50,000 mile warranty on the power train. This proved to be too expensive and too unwieldy to administer, and the company retreated to one year and 12,000 mile coverage.

Many auto executives explain the five-year policy as a marketing device to attract fleet car sales, which constitute a large portion of the new car market.

Chrysler's new warranty, "the clincher," has a one-year limit, but no mileage restrictions. It is also interpreted to be an effort to capture a larger amount of the fleet car market, which constitutes approximately 25 per cent of the total automobile market, according to Ford representative Stephen Madeline.

Knox says that he is glad to see the automobile companies use warranties as an advertising tool. "That puts the pressure on all of the manufacturers to come up with equivalent or better warranty programs, and it also puts the warranty performance of the dealer and the factory under the spotlight."

THE CENTER for Auto Safety in Washington D.C. has a complaint of a different nature against both domestic and foreign manufacturers. Their complaint is against "arbitrary warranty extensions."

These warranty extensions allow some vehicles to be fixed free after the warranty has expired. Usually the problem is "chronic" in that it occurs with great frequency.

But the way the warranty extension is implemented is "unfair," says Lowell Dodge, former director of the center. "These policies benefit only those who are either chronic complainers, well-educated, or in the right place at the right time, rather than applying evenly to all affected owners."

He continues, "We believe that elementary fairness requires that all auto companies disclose fully all decisions to extend warranties beyond the limits set forth in the standard warranty."

Warranty provisions vary

Not all new car warranties are alike, and there are several provisions and disclaimers that are peculiar to individual manufacturers' guarantees.

All four domestic manufacturers offer a 12-month warranty for repair of defective materials and workmanship in the car.

That is where the parellel ends. With the exception of Chrysler, American manufacturers also have a 12,000 mile limit in their warranties. And with the exception of American Motors, there is a 90- day adjustment period, after which the owner is asked to assume adjustments as part of his maintenance.

The Chrysler warranty explains this by stating, "After the first 90 days of use, adjustments are considered owner-maintenance responsibility unless required in connection with the repair or replacement of a part we supplied which proves defective during the warranty period."

After 90 days, Ford, Chrysler, and General Motors will not cover items they consider to be "selected wear parts." Items such as spark plugs, PCV valves, filters, hoses and belts are usually mentioned specifically.

NOT ALL companies supply loaners when a car is being serviced for warranty repairs overnight. Often appointments have to be made in advance for a consumer to get a "loaner."

Tires are warranteed by the tire manufacturer, and batteries are under a special provision in all the warranties with the exception of AMC. They are replaced free in the first 12 months and are prorated thereafter.

All four manufacturers have provisions that will prevent repair if "owner abuse" is indicated. The Buick warranty is representative when it states, "Repairs and service adjustments required because of misuse, negligence, alteration, accident, or lack of reasonable and proper maintenance are not covered."

The AMC warranty is a little less specific: "All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for under normal use and service."

The Ford warranty has a disclaimer that is common to all warranties with the exception of AMC. It says, "Loss of use of the vehicle loss of time, inconvenience, commercial loss or consequential damages are not covered."

BEFORE PURCHASING a new car, consumers should scrutinize the warranty and make sure that all provisions are fully explained. If problems arise after the purchase of a new car, each manufacturer has zone offices, regional offices and, in some instances, specific service offices to register complaints.

These offices may be of assistance when the dealer and the consumer do not see eye to eye over repair and warranty problems.

Schoolcraft enters year cautiously

By C. NELSON GROTE
Schoolcraft President

Two thoughts underscore my thinking as I look ahead to what 1975 will hold for Schoolcraft College: the year just ended was a very good one for us, and we have reason to approach the new year with cautious optimism.

First, a brief look back. Two things which made 1974 good were the highest enrollment in the history of the college, and the fact that we were able to complete our fiscal year with a modest fund balance.

At a time when other segments of higher education are experiencing significant difficulties due to declining enrollments and concerns caused by decreasing revenues and the effects of inflation, it is comforting to note that Schoolcraft College can be considered a growth industry. In fact, community colleges in Michigan grew, on a percentage basis, twice the statewide average for higher education in the fall of 1974.

C. NELSON GROTE

CURRENT ENROLLMENT

At this writing, it would appear that we should also approach our 1975 winter enrollment with cautious optimism. We had budgeted for 56,057 credit hours and it is our best estimate that we will need to enroll 6,836 students to generate the necessary hours. (Figures exclude Community Services programs).

Traditionally, institutions of higher education fare well during periods of recession and depression. This should be especially true with the growth of community colleges since they are community-based, provice the capability of the student residing at his usual place of residence and offer programs and services with reasonable tuition and fees.

We are expecting a very strong response from veterans and from students transferring from senior colleges and universities. We anticipate an increase in the number of unemployed students enrolling at Schoolcraft, an increase in the number of credit hours taken by the less-employed, or possibly both.

One factor we must keep in mind is that the number of high school graduates in America is on the decline. Projections indicate that in 1990-91 there will be fewer high school seniors enrolled in America than in 1966-67. Colleges and universities which tailor programs to serve only the immediate high school graduate are the ones already feeling the squeeze—having declining enrollments and facing problems of retrenchment of faculty and staff.

Fortunately, we saw this change coming and began early to serve the entire community. Our adult population is growing and will continue to grow. Our enrollment will continue to grow for the next five or 10 years, providing we are sufficiently sensitive to the needs of our community and adapt quickly enough to the unique and changing needs of the people.

FINANCIAL OUTLOOK

Since our state appropriation is based primarily on the number of calendar year equated students (CYES) we enroll, we are now generating the data base for our 1975-76 state appropriation.

However, during the past calendar year we generated 152 CYESs above our state appropriation. Theoretically, this means that we could have as much as $244,553 in additional revenue for 1974-75. But $230,670 must come from the state through a supplemental appropriation. Since most of the community colleges in Michigan exceeded their estimates, the supplemental funds required will amount to approximately $5.4 million.

Consequently, the executive office faces a dichotomy: On one hand, they are attempting to reduce the expenditure of the state to stay within revenue sources, and on the other hand, they are quite obligated to add $5.4 million to the appropriation for community college.

We do have a commitment from Gov. Milliken and the Bureau of the Budget that we will receive the supplemental appropriation based upon the actual number of CYESs earned in 1974. It will require legislative action. I am optimistic that the combined efforts of the governor, the Bureau of the Budget and the Senate and the House will result in a supplemental appropriation for 1974-75.

We are currently under an executive order which cuts 1.5 per cent from our initial appropriation. We have a second directive from the governor which requires a one per cent carryover into the coming fiscal year. We have also been advised that an additional 1.5 per cent reduction may be forthcoming. Collectively, it represents a total reduction of $125,000 from anticipated revenues for the balance of this fiscal year.

It cost us some money to generate the extra 152 CYESs. Therefore, we have spent and/or or obligated all of the new funds. If we get the supplemental, even with the cuts made and the potential cuts, we can be solvent on July 1 and will not have to cut any programs and services. If we do not get the supplemental appropriation, we will have some financial problems.

We are currently conducting a five-year financial study. We plan to split out of this long range projection our first estimate of the financial needs of the college for 1975-76. This estimate will be presented to the Board of Trustees at its regular meeting in January.

The data we are collecting and analyzing will not only tell us if we have a "fit" between revenue and expense for 1975-76 but will also be the primary data that will help the board determine if we are to go to the voters this Spring for new millage. With the economic slowdown and the general voter climate in regard to new taxes, the board will be weighing this decision very carefully.

POSSIBLE TUITION HIKE

Even with a declining yet strong increase in our state equalized valuation, I think we will have to seriously consider an increase in our tuition and/or or fee structure for 1975-76. The governor made it clear, when we met with him on Dec. 13, that the state feels that if they are to continue to increase our state appropriation, we must also increase our tuition and fees.

We will need to be careful not to price ourselves out of the market and we must also watch the relative cost of our out-of-district tuition rate and that of senior colleges serving the same area. Our last tuition raise was 10 per cent in March 1972, which went into effect during the 1972-73 school year.

NEW FACILITIES

At the present time, the picture is somewhat gloomy in regard to state appropriations for capital outlay projects in 1975-76. If funding policies do not change, there will be few new construction starts in 1975-76 at Michigan community colleges.

I doubt if we will see a major project funded for Schoolcraft College in 1975-76 and I doubt the board of trustees will decide to fund major capital projects without matching money from the state.

At the same time, we must have more space if we are to grow—especially after 5 p.m. We are currently using our facilities at maximum four nights each week and have no room to expand either our regular programs of instruction or our community services programs.

In this regard we have several options. I am personally very optimistic that we may be sharing the Wayne County Child Development Center with Wayne State University and other social agencies during the calendar year 1975. The Citizens Advisory Committee studying this matter is meeting regularly, and I believe some decision will be made prior to the end of the month.

There is also a possibility that we will rent additional space in Garden City. Our instructional center there has grown to where we served more than 750 persons last fall, and we think it has the potential of serving at least 1,000 persons each semester if we continue with creative scheduling, and new classes and services that have been made possible through the $100,000 grant given to us by the Legislature.

A third alternative is to consider renting other facilities like public school buildings in Livonia or Clarenceville that are no longer needed because of declining elementary enrollments. While there are many problems in renting multiple buildings—especially elementary schools—there are also some distinct advantages. Chief among these is their proximity to the adult student body, convenience, limited transportation requirements and public familiarity with the facility.

LEGISLATION IMPACT

Several federal Laws which were passed or amended in 1974 or prior years will have a major impact in 1975. Title IX of the Educational Amendments of 1972, which prohibits sex discrimination is still very much up in the air (unsettled).

While tentative guidelines were distributed and public hearings were held prior to Nov. 15, Congress was unhappy with the guidelines. Therefore, they amended the previous act by attaching a rider to the White House Conference on Library and Information Services for 1974.

A second federal act, called the Family Education and Privacy Act, which became effective Nov. 19, contained what is known as the Buckley Amendment. Implementation has presented so many problems that Sen. James Buckley himself offered an amendment to the amendment late in the Congress.

NEW PROGRAMS IN 1975

One new curricula will be offered beginning with the fall semester of 1975-76. Pending final approval, we will be offering an applied science degree in real estate.

Final consideration is being given to an independent human studies program which provides the vehicle for students to earn up to 15 hours of credit through independent study. In addition, we anticipate that we will have several new methods of granting credit on the basis of equivalency.

WE'RE GOING TO MAKE LIFE A BOWL OF CHERRIES.

Nine out of ten people are under-insured or not insured at all, because nine out of ten people simply don't understand life insurance.

That's very unfortunate. Because if they really understood some of the plans life insurance offers today, they'd know life insurance may be a better value than a savings plan, a stock investment, or a mutual fund.

In fact, we believe so strongly in the value of life insurance that we've just announced a wide selection of new life insurance plans only for Triple-A members and their families. We're offering this selection of plans not to confuse you, but to make sure that we have a life style to match your life style.

Obviously you're not going to buy life insurance based on what this ad says. But we think you will want to buy it based on what the guy who's helped with your car insurance and homeowner's insurance says. So call your Triple-A representative. He'll serve as your guide to life insurance. Because he knows you, and he knows life insurance. And he'll explain to you in easy to understand layman's terms how you can build real cash values over the years and provide your family with life insurance protection at the same time.

Remember, he hasn't tried to oversell or undersell you before. And he's not going to try overselling or underselling you on life insurance now. If you ever have any questions on life insurance, he's never going to be farther away than your phone. He feels it's his responsibility to guide you through your life with our life, and make both just as uncomplicated as he can. In other words, he's going to make life a bowl of cherries for you.

Adult ed program to open

Adult education classes in the Clarenceville School District will start the week of Feb. 3 and run for up to 10 weeks.

Classes will be held in the Clarenceville High School, 20155 Middle Belt, north of Seven Mile.

Among classes offered is "English as a second language," free to foreign born, and "completing high school," both meeting for 15 weeks.

"Do Something Different" will be offered for two hours a week for a $24 fee. Students will have a choice to pick six of eight topics.

The eight are astrology, handwriting analysis, adventure in awareness, houseplants, law for the layman, "what happens to Mr. and Mrs. becomes Ms.," unidentified flying objects, and transactional analysis.

Interested persons may register by mail using the form provided or in person on Tuesday, Jan. 28, from 7:30 - 9 p.m. at the high school, or daily from 9-11 a.m. or 1-4 p.m. at the school board offices, 28830 Eight Mile near Middle Belt.

January is cold and sunny

The month of January offers the unlikely combination of steadily increasing sunshine and colder temperatures, according to University of Michigan astronomer Hazel M. Losh.

"One would think the coldest time of the year would fall on or near winter solstice (Dec. 21), when the number of sunlit hours is at a minimum," Prof. Losh says. "However, this is not the case. For a period usually of four to six weeks after the solstice, the northern hemishere loses more heat at night than the sun can replace during the day."

This phenomenon, when the temperature continues to drop until early February, is known as the "lag of the seasons."

BY THE END of January, the days will have grown "lopsidedly longer" by about one hour. She explains that the lengthening will be more noticeable in the evening, with the later setting of the sun, rather than in the morning.

"This can be traced to the fact that our clocks run at a constant rate while the sun actually speeds up and slows down in a regular, predictable pattern during its yearly orbit around the earth."

The faint stars of Cancer form an inverted or upside down "Y." Near the junction of the upright and branching lines forming the inverted letter is a dim, misty object popularly known as the "beehive."

"FOR AGES the beehive attracted attention, but because of its faintness no one knew exactly what it was," Prof. Losh says, adding that it was one of the first celestial bodies Galileo examined with his primitive telescope.

C'ville OK's anti-vandalism project

The school board recently approved a vandalism prevention-incentive program in which each high school, junior high and elementary school will receive $1 per student to spend on whatever educational materials or activity the student body approves at the end of the school year.

Damages due to vandalism at any of the schools, however, will be subtracted form that school's fund.

"THE OBJECTIVE of this program is to give students a new sense of responsibility and pride in their school buildings," said Supt. David McDowell.

"Losses due to vandalism cost the district nearly $6,000 last year. If this program reduces the cost of repairing or replacing items lost by vandalism, it will have served its purpose," he added.

He said it would allow more money to be spent on education materials.

The $1 per student program will cost the district about $3,300 for the second semester, McDowell said.

State supports work-study programs

Nearly 700 school drop-outs have gone back to school or found jobs through "alternative education" programs in seven Michigan cities this year.

Of the 680 persons who "graduated" from the program since last January, 221 returned to their regular schools, 106 completed work on high school equivalency degrees, 296 found jobs, 25 entered the armed forces and 32 went on to higher education institutions.

These figures were released by the State Board of Education which began the program as an experimental project in an abandoned Pontiac drug store in 1971.

The Crestwood strike—a pulpit view

ECUMENICAL REFLECTIONS

By REV. WILLIAM A. RITTER
(Newburg United Methodist Church, Livonia)

As a minister, I have to confess how difficult it is to translate the essence of the Gospel into the complex and devisive affairs of human life, especially when the issue is hot—when voices rise— when heat far exceeds light.

Honesty compels us to admit there are a whole lot of areas in which Christians do not qualify as experts simply because they are Christians. Competence in making decisions does not automatically flow from religious experience.

It is out of that inadequacy that I dare to issue a word on a sorely devisive subject—the Crestwood teachers' strike.

EVERYONE HAS an opinion. Which of us, even though not directly affected, has not had a child or a grandchild lose valuable time in recent years because teachers and school boards have not been able to agree on a contract by the opening of the school year.

Which of us does not quietly fear a massive shut-down of the educational system in our own particular district if sympathy walkouts should materialize. Which of us of voting age has not agonized over millage elections as we tried to balance family budget with school budget needs.

THERE WAS A FANTASY that I carried for years. It has to do with the search for a pure environment where people would operate out of the highest of motives and not be subject to the same kinds of forces and pressures that shaped other areas of human life.

I think I learned sooner than most that the church was not such an environment, but for a long time I thought much of the educational world was a place of purity.

I revered teachers and accepted their authority and in most cases attributed to them only the purest of motives.

But I have learned that there can be no pure environments where there are people environments. Where people are involved, there is as great a capacity for sinking to the depths as there is for ascending to the heights.

The presence of people invokes, by sheer definition, the presence of politics, That is neither good nor bad—that is just the way it is.

BUT I DO BELIEVE that the Gospel is nothing if it be totally removed from the affairs of men. So I so believe there are Biblical issues worth raising in the Crestwood situation. They are value issues and four in number.

•What is the value of education to a community? More specifically, what is the value of a teacher to a community? What premium do we place on a teacher's labor.?

There has been an unspoken assumption that teachers and clergymen labor, not for money, but out of dedication, and that if we pay such people too much money it will somehow destroy the dedication.

Yet we do not blink an eye when Catfish Hunter sells himself to the New York Yankees for a pay package approximating $3.7 million To be sure, I understand the law of supply and demand. Apparently there is not a readily-available supply of Catfish Hunters. In the same manner, we have grown somewhat accustomed to large contract settlements in industry.

Yet somehow we are quietly offended if teachers raise economic issues, even though few of us could be good teachers.

•A second issue concerns teacher image. Is the teacher a laborer or a professional? Is the work a "calling" or a job?

There is no question that this whole matter of image is tainted by strikes. There is great student hostility toward not only the striking teachers but toward teachers in general because of this disruption.

Teachers can argue that this hostility is fanned by parents. But the teachers must also bear a large part of the responsibility for bringing such hostility upon themselves.

Teaching is more than a job, and somehow we must find a way to reward it in a way that will bestow upon it the value it deserves.

•The third issue involves what happens to a community under a system of contract bargaining that continually encourages disruption, and here I am speaking more broadly than Crestwood.

I think several things happen. There is polarization, teachers set against teachers, and against the community they serve. But most significantly, teachers are polarized against children.

The sad fact is that there must be some measure of both authority and respect for the teacher-learning relationship to exist. A still sadder fact is that such situations are ones in which children ultimately become pawns.

Some might say, "What is the turmoil of one year in an educational process that takes 13 years?" But what is the value of one year if it is your last year in high school?

•The fourth issue asks what has happened to the role of communities in helping shape the education of their children. We talk romantically about keeping school districts both local and small so we will have a voice in what happens, and we fight state takeover because we prize community control.

But we have a system—even in the smallest districts— in which we of the community are not actors or directors of education. We are reactors, and all too often in a negative voice. We are known more for the millages we defeat than the millages we pass.

I suggest three small ways in which we may begin to move beyond such impasses in the future.

•Let's build into the bargaining process— on paper at least—the right for teachers to strike, since the provision against striking is not only the most widely-ignored provision of the law that we have to day, but also because apparently it backs teachers into corners out of which they respond with more militant tactics than they might otherwise use.

•Second, having written a right-to-strike provision, let's also specify in the same manner procedures in which contracts must be negotiated, including clear time tables, fact-finding and binding arbitration after a certain passage of time.

•Third, let us acknowledge that teachers, in their fight for job security, must not be allowed to use tenure as a rock to hide behind and ignore attempts at evaluation, review and accountability.

The latter word may be a hair-raising one, but there are none of us free from the pressures of being evaluated in any walk of life, and we do not function effectively for long periods of time when we become too secure.

IT IS TIME for all of us to reevaluate our positions in the interest of our common future.

When Jesus was in the Temple, much to the surprise of his parents, learning from his elders, he defended his action with the statement "I am about my father's business." Education— our father's business. Would that we could somehow approach that lofty position once again.

Dearden visits for ecumenical week

By MARGARET MILLER

Cardinal John Dearden, Archbishop of Detroit, will come to Redford Township to lead an ecumenical prayer service Sunday, Jan. 19.

In the week between, children in the area will visit their friends' churches and and teens will gather for an ecumenical, all-night pot-pourri of movies.

Businessmen and women will gather daily for prayer breakfasts, and a charismic prayer group will get together each evening.

Also scheduled are a choir festival, an afternoon of craft sharing and a tour of several historic churches in downtown Detroit.

IT'S ALL PART of the plans three Redford Township churches and one just east of the border in Detroit have made for a Week of Christian Unity, which shapes up as one of the biggest ecumenical adventures yet proposed in the Detroit area.

Our Lady of Loretto Catholic Church, Village Presbyterian Church, Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, all in the township, and St. Martin Episcopal Church in Detroit are the churches involved in the planning.

But clergy and lay representatives from all four churches are quick to emphasize that all are invited to join in any of the events planned for the busy eight days.

"The year 1975 marks the meeting of the World Council of Protestant Churches and the Catholic celebration of a Holy Year of Reconciliation," explained the Rev. Robert V. Ryan, co-pastor of Our Lady of Loretto. "These two events have given greater impetus to these four churches for their observance of the week of prayer for Christian unity."

THE EIGHT DAYS of special events grew out of a long-standing tradition of cooperative Thanksgiving Eve services for the three Redford Township churches.

This year, it was decided to have an expanded cooperative effort, and an invitation to participate was extended to St. Martin church through its pastor, the Rev. Robert Miller.

"The Thanksgiving Eve services have been planned by the pastors," he said, "and this time there are lay people from all the churches taking an active part in the preparations."

CARDINAL DEARDEN'S visit is planned for 4 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 19, to give the program its official launching.

"It is a most unusual visit for the Cardinal," Fr. Ryan said. "because he will not only be present but will lead the service in Our Lady of Loretto.

"The service is for all members of the participating churches and others who are interested, and after the service there will be an opportunity to meet and talk with the Cardinal at a reception."

Our Lady of Loretto is located at 17116 Olympia, near the Six Mile-Beech intersection.

THE WEEK OF ACTIVITY actually begins the day before the prayer service with a Saturday tour of four historic churches in Detroit, St. John Episcopal, St. Anne Catholic, Old Mariners' Church in the Civic Center and Trinity Episcopal.

The tour, specially-arranged by the Detroit Historical Museum for the local churches, will begin at 10 a.m. in the Loretto parking lot. Travel will be by bus, and participants will be back in Redford by 3:30.

The cost is $2, and reservations must be made by calling the offices of any of the churches participating.

REPRESENTATIVES of the planning committee, both clergy and laity, are taking specific responsibilities in the various activities planned for the week.

Leonard Noechel of Good Shepherd Lutheran is leading plans for the prayer breakfasts, scheduled Monday through Friday at 6:30 a.m. in Good Shepherd Church, 26212 W. Six Mile.

"We hope to set the tone for the day for many employed people in the area with this hour," Noechel said. "We will serve a continental breakfast and follow it by prayer in several forms—corporate prayer, silent prayer, individual prayer."

The Rev. Donald Herdman, Good Shepherd pastor, said he is getting together a group of people "who will commit themselves to pray together every evening from 7:15 to 8 p.m."

The prayers will be held in all four of the churches involved, moving from one to another each night. Information on participation in that group is available by calling the Lutheran pastor.

VILLAGE PRESBYTERIAN, located at 25350 W. Six Mile, will host two major events on the schedule.

The first is a "Prayer through Music" choir festival at 8:15 p.m. Monday, Jan. 20, and the second a potluck family dinner, beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 25.

Rodger Phillips of Village Presbyterian and choir directors from the other churches will be in charge of the musical program that will use several vocal groups as well as handbells to trace musical forms through 2,000 church years.

Some 50 to 60 musicians will participate.

The potluck dinner to and the special week will have 200 tickets available, and each church will hand them out on a first-come, first-served basis.

Jim Harrison, magician, will be the entertainer. Each family attending will be asked to bring a passing dish of meat, vegetable, salad or dessert.

Rev. Miller of St. Martin is working on a tour of the four churches for elementary school children beginning at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 21, in the Good Shepherd parking lot.

"We want to give the younger kids a chance to visit each other's churches," he said.

"We'll show them the different parts of the sanctuaries and emphasize similarities in our forms of worship rather than differences."

St. Martin church, located at 24699 Grand River, will be the setting for a teen movie party running from 8:30 p.m. Friday, Jan. 24, to 6 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 25.

Youths from ninth to 12th grades are invited to join in the showing of feature and inspirational films with some comedies thrown in.

"Bring sleeping bags," said Rev. Antonson, associate pastor of Village Presbyterian, in leading the youth event.

Women from the four churches will have a craft afternoon Thursday, Jan. 23, in St. Martin. The meeting will run from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., with those participating asked to bring a sack lunch.

THE COMMITTEE setting up the prayer week has been meeting for several months to coordinate plans.

Its members include the Rev. Gerald M. Shirilla, co-pastor, Fr. Ryan, Armbruster and Dorothy Srock of Our Lady of Loretto; the Rev. James Crawford, pastor, Rev. Antonson, Lillian Forster and Joan Karnes of Village Presbyterian; Rev. Herdman, Noechel and Jennie Waara of Good Shepherd and Rev. Miller, Jack Pickard and Marlene Aughton of St. Martin.

By W.W. EDGAR

Five more names were added to the membership rolls in the 700 Club during the past week.

Leading the parade of the newcomers was Ed Wright, who posted a 723 series in the Business Men's League at Bel-Aire Lanes, while the Classic provided three additions when Jack Brown fired a 710 to beat Dave McIvor by a single pin and Bill Walker added a 703.

It was one of the biggest weeks of the season for the Club.

• • •

It was another week of high scoring at Bel-Aire, aside from the four totals that broke the 700 barrier.

Pudgy Ellerhold had a 278 middle game in a 678 series in the senior house league and was followed by Ed Miu and Gil Schornhorst each of whom fashioned a 638.

It was another close one in the Businessmen's circuit. While Wright was firing his 723 only five pins separated the next three. Ron Wolofski took the runnerup position with a 657, one pin ahead of Bill Etherington and Doug Hays was four pins back at 652.

In the mixed league Len Petroff was high with 654 and Ron Enders posted a 628. On the ladies side Dot Bashara had a 543 and Chris Stevenson a 506.

• • •

In the ladies classic at Farmington Lanes the spotlight fell on Gloria Mertz who had a 245 in 591. In the Teen Classic it was Bill Stephensen leading the parade with a 215 in 609.

The best finish of the week came in the Westland Classic when Edgar Wylie rolled a 266 after games of 198 and 191 for a 655 series that gave him runnerup honors to Garrett's 708. Behind this pair came Ken Kossic who profited by a 255 start for a 641 series.

• • •

A 221 start enabled Millie Berthet to pace the Wednesday Ladies at Plymouth Bowl while Kim Stoughton took high single in the Thursday division with a 232.

• • •

This week Ruth Gallinat toppled the 6-7-10; Barbara Hobbs converted the 4-7-10 and Ann Roebeck did the same with the 5-6-10.

The best series among the Mayflower Ladies was a 543 by MaryAnn Moran. Behind her came Marge Schubert with 516, Marge Salnato with 514 and Lee Roberts with 510.

There can be little doubt about it now—Wonderland Lanes in Livonia is the highest scoring house in the entire area.

Since the start of the season there has been an unofficial race among Wonderland, Westland Bowl and Bel-Aire Lanes in Farmington. But slowly Wonderland forged to the front with one series of 800 close to series above 700 and any number of team series above the 3,000 mark.

Now, while leagues in other places are fearful of a drop in scoring because of the annual holiday refinishing of the lanes, Wonderland jumped off to a big lead.

The Classic set about the task of maintaining a high scoring level last Thursday night. When the last pin fell the loop had registered series of 3,231, 3,166 an 3,112; three individual series above 700 and more than a dozen 600s.

The T.K. Co. team, captained by John Cox posted the 3,231, while Farris Bros had the 3,166 and Ron Fournier's Thirsty Ducks landed with with the 3,112.

Fournier was the big individual gun of the night as he fashioned a 707 on games of 226, 367 and 224. One pin behind came Fred McClain with counts of 225, 256 and 225, and Dean Shiffman completed the top trio with an even 700.

With his 706, McClain continued the hot streak that earned the Man of the Year award from the Michigan Majors Association. He also is fighting to win top average honors in the Classic, too.

THERE IS AN old saying that it takes a lean horse for a long race and applied to bowling it takes a thin man to keep going and be ready when called upon.

This was the case with Lou Haydu, the slender gent who has been bowling with the all-stars for many season.

Called upon to fill in as a sub for the Stroh team in the Michigan Open at Schaefer Lanes, all Lou did was roll games of 186, 227 and 234 for a 647.

PLANS WERE announced this week for the Masters Tournament sponsored each year by the Greater Detroit Bowling Association.

The Stroller

The quack doctor

By W.W. EDGAR

Sooner or later the truth comes to the fore. A fellow can hide his secrets just so long. Then, in an idle moment, there is a slip of the tongue, and an odd page in a fellow's past is a secret no longer.

This happened to The Stroller at Schoolcraft College while chatting with Fernon Feenstra, director of technology, and Dr. Marvin Gans, head of the physical education department.

WE WERE discussing the giant strides made during the past decades in first aid stations at industrial plants and the advances in the safety programs for employes.

These advances have come about because of the law that became effective this year which requires an industrial plant to have one certified first aid administrator for every 10 employes. There also must be a certified first aid person in every repair squad that is sent out on a job.

"We have come full circle," Feenstra explained, "and now the emphasis is again placed on the humans in the factories instead of the machines in the age of automation."

LITTLE DID HE realize that he was opening a page of The Stroller's past that still is good for a few laughs every time he recalls his days—and nights—in the grease and muck of the machine shops.

In those days the mechanics who worked the night shift were the first aid men and the machine shop was the first aid station.

So it was the first night The Stroller reported on a new job. He was taken to a cupboard and was shown a large bottle of iodine and several rolls of bandage.

"This is for you to use should anyone come in with any sort of cuts," the foreman said. "You just coat the cut with iodine to stop the bleeding. Then you bandage the wound—but not too tight. You'll find things will work out all right."

Several nights went by and there were no requests to stop the bleeding or to bandage wounds and The Stroller felt safe—for he knew little about first aid.

Then one hot summer night, there was a parade of workmen who had been tussling with molten metal coming in for relief of stomach cramps, aches in the chest and sore arms.

What to do?

The Stroller didn't know.

Fortunately, there was an elderly worker around who saved the day.

"TAKE A TRIP downtown in the morning," he said, "and buy a large jar of soda mint tablets, and about four different colored bottles. We'll fix these fellows whom I think aren't nearly as sick as they pretend."

That night, when The Stroller reported for the work, the old gent greeted him with a smile and then set up a medical shop.

He placed different amounts of the soda mint tablets in each bottle and said, "Now let them come."

It wasn't long before we had our first case—a fellow with terrible pains in his stomach and another with a peculiar type of an ache.

The old gent winked as he feigned taking the victim's pulse, then listening to his heart beat. Next, in a serious vein, he stepped to the first aid cabinet, looked at the colored bottles and, taking two of them from the shelf, he said to the "sick" worker, "Take two of these each hour," then taking two from another bottle, he said, "and one of these every four hours—but not more than two a night."

DAYLIGHT was just breaking through when the first of the 'sick' men reported, and asked, "Where did you get those pills. They are the best I ever had. They fixed me right up."

The Old Guy just laughed. When the victim departed he turned to The Stroller and said, "That's how you do it...It's just a bit of psychology."

And that's the secret The Stroller has kept for years.

Among many other things he was a "quack" doctor in his youth—and made a reputation by the simple means of soda mint tablets.

THIS BOY AND THIS GIRL ARE MISSING

This boy and this girl are missing out on a lot of things they could be having as carriers for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. They could be earning such things as money, merchandise prizes and tickets to special events.

But earning pocket money and winning special prizes are just two of the nice things that can happen to carriers. There are bigger advantages. A carrier goes into business for himself. At an early age, he or she learns how to get along with people. They do a bit of bookkeeping. They learn responsibility. They gain additional confidence.

Is your child missing out on these things? If one of your children is 12 years old or more, we suggest you get in touch with us, and hear about our carrier program.

If you're interested, fill out the coupon below and send it to the Circulation Department of our newspaper.

A LA KING
4½ cups diced, cooked chicken
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
½ cup canned mushrooms
2 tablespoons flour
Dash salt
½ cup hot chicken broth
½ cup hot milk
2 tablespoons finely cut pimiento
6 patty shells
Cook green pepper and mushrooms in butter until tender. Blend in flour and salt; add broth and milk. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add pimiento and chicken. Heat to blend flavors. Pour into patty shells. Serves 6.
CHICKEN
FRICASSEE
1 3- to 3½-pound stewing chicken
½ lemon
2 sliced onions
2 sliced carrots
3 stalks celery, cut into pieces
3 sprigs parsley
6 peppercorns
1 bay leaf
Dash thyme
2 cups chicken stock
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
3 lightly beaten egg yolks
4 tablespoons heavy cream
3 tablespoons grated horseradish
Dash salt
Dash pepper
Rub chicken with lemon. Place in a pot with vegetables, seasonings and stock. Add water if necessary to cover. Boil; cover. Simmer until tender for 35 minutes. Remove chicken. Discard bay leaf, reduce stock to 2 cups. Skim off fat and strain. Combine butter and flour. Stir into stock to make a sauce. Add egg yolks, cream, horseradish, salt and pepper. Skin and bone chicken. Add to sauce and heat through; do not boil. Serves 6.
CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS
1 8- to 3½-pound stewing chicken
6 cups salted, boiling water
1 tablespoon salt
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
2 thinly sliced carrots
3 chopped stalks celery
8 small potatoes
9 small white onions
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Parsley
½ teaspoon salt
1 beaten egg
¾ cup flour
Cut chicken into joints and stew for 1 hour in the salted boiling water, with poultry seasoning, half the carrots and celery and one of the onions until tender. Remove chicken; strain stock and discard the vegetables. Add water to stock to make 6 cups. Add remaining vegetables and bring slowly to a boil. Blend flour, salt and baking powder. Combine milk and egg with blended dry ingredients, making a soft sticky dough. When chicken broth is boiling, drop in the dumpling batter ½ teaspoon of dough at a time. Cover; boil for 10 minutes exactly. Mix cornstarch to a smooth paste with a little cold water and stir into simmering pot. Return chicken to pot, continue to simmer and stir gently until chicken is hot and gravy rich and clear. Garnish with parsley. Serves 6.

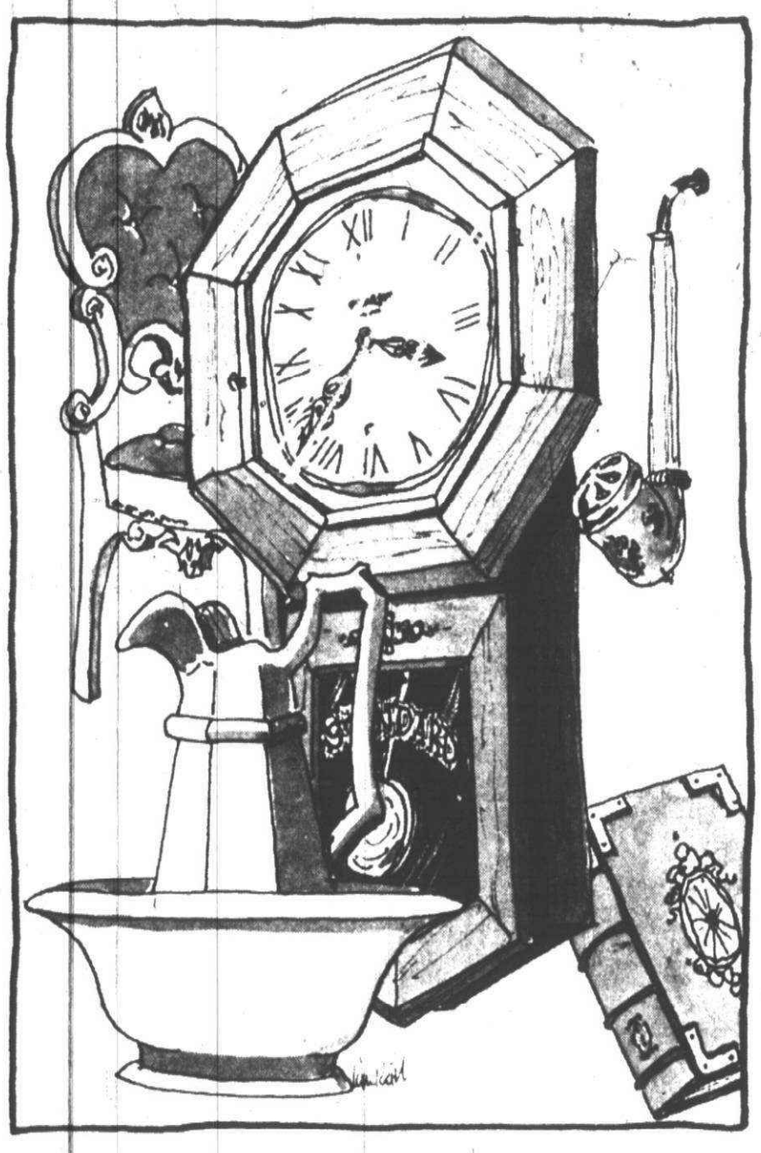
People who buy and people who sell get together in the Observer&Eccentric Newspapers



Buyers and sellers are "strange" people. Strange to each other, that is. People with lots of different needs and wants, people who need to get together. They need to get together in the quickest, least expensive and most effective way possible—the Observer & Eccentric Want Ads.

Say you need a buyer for a bunch of baby basset hounds, or a really good home for a litter of antiques...How do you meet those unknown admirers with an eye for your special goods? How do you keep track of sellers with garage sales, and owners of autos and pets to trade? It's easy -- when you know where buyers and sellers get together best—the Observer & Eccentric Classifieds.

It's easy to get double buying and selling results, too. Double-Action Ads bring people together from all over Wayne and Oakland Counties. These suburban communities include: Birmingham, Bloomfield, West Bloomfield, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Rochester, Avon Twp., Southfield and Troy in Oakland County; Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth, Plymouth Twp., Canton Twp., Redford Twp., and Westland in Wayne County. Smart buyers and sellers place a Double Action Family Want Ad (non-business) of 15 words or less in two consecutive issues, with no changes in copy and no cancellations -- and they pay only $6. That's a savings of $2.00 off the regular cost of placing an ad in two issues.

When you have something to sell...when you have something to buy...you've got a lot in common in the Observer & Eccentric Classified Want Ads.

BELOW COST

We built a luxury home in one of Troy's finest subdivisions; where nothing sells for less than $50,000. So you know what kind of neighbors you will have and what kind of children your kids will be going to school with.

We think our home compares favorably with any all brick full basement, 2 car attached garage, fully carpeted, large large room home. In fact this beautiful home will strengthen weak families and certainly will make happy families happier.

This home WAS very fairly priced at $45,300. but general business conditions have forced us to price it "below cost" at $35,300.

You might as well be the one to save the $10,000, so hurry!
